Beginners and Dummies Barbara Dawson, 2020-08-18 Meal prepping is making a meal or recipe then portioning it out to store for later. If you've ever kept leftovers from dinner to take with you for lunch the next day, you've learned that meal prepping is a great way to save time and money. While meal prepping refers to preparing 3-7 days worth of food at once, think of it like keeping your lunches for the week all at once instead of keeping them for breakfast, lunch, and snacks. Meal prepping involves not wasting food and reducing waste, and it's a great way to plan a diet or a budget. When keeping a meal plan for the week, it's important to consider the cost of ingredients and the time it takes to prepare the meals. It's good to have a variety of meals without having to do the same thing every day. If you don't like leftovers or get bored with the same meal prepping night after night, then having a meal plan can help you maximize your time and budget. It's important to consider the nutritional value of the meals and the cost of ingredients. If you have a budget, then meal prepping can be a great way to save money. It's also important to consider the nutritional value of the meals and the cost of ingredients. If you have a budget, then meal prepping can be a great way to save money.
