making processes rose. Therefore it has been ever since relevant for marketers to analyse and evaluate consumers decision making processes and consumers behaviour. With the evolution and diffusion from mobile phones to smart phones a new horizon for consumers opened and a new dimension to mobile devices added consisting of the accessibility and availability of information regardless location and time. Consequently consumers decision making processes have been influenced and the relevancy of mobile location based marketing and related services for consumers and organizations increased. The present master dissertation constitutes on the increasing importance of mobile location based marketing and services. The objective is to investigate the impact of location based services on consumers buying behaviour which is significantly impacted by consumer decision making processes. Therefore relevant theoretical models and theories concerning consumers decision making process and buying behaviour are described and evaluated. Furthermore primary data is collected via online questionnaires and face to face interviews in order to conduct an empirical analysis. The results reveal that consumers requirements towards mobile location based marketing including location based services such as shopping apps and mobile advertisement are segmented. It is identified that technology affine consumers are more likely to purchase across channels. Further these consumers show a higher acceptance of stimuli conveyed by mobile advertisement. Personal and psychological factors such as price sensibility, lifestyle orientation and consumers involvement are identified as impacting factors on consumers decision making process within this research.
