Wearable Sensor Technology for Monitoring Training Load and Health in the Athletic Population, Billy Sperlich, Hans-Christer Holmberg, Kamiar Aminian, 2020-02-13. Several internal and external factors have been identified to estimate and control the psychological stress of training in order to optimize training responses and to avoid fatigue, overtraining, and other undesirable health effects of an athlete. An increasing number of lightweight sensor-based wearable technologies (wearables) have entered the sports technology market. Non-invasive sensor-based wearable technologies could transmit physical, physiological, and biological data to a computing platform and may provide, through human-machine interaction (smart watch, smartphone, tablet), bio-feedback of various parameters for training load management and health.

However in theory several wearable technologies may assist to control training load but the assessment of accuracy reliability validity usability and practical relevance of new upcoming technologies for the management of training load is paramount for optimal adaptation and health Renewables and Energy for Rural Development in Sub-Saharan Africa Maxwell Mapako, Abel Mbewe, 2013-07-18 Energy supply is a key factor in economic and social development but lack of modern energy in rural areas limits efforts to alleviate poverty and improve living standards This book identifies the options for providing modern and improved renewables based energy to low income rural areas with special emphasis on the productive uses In the five countries represented Botswana Eritrea Ethiopia Zambia and Zimbabwe the contributors focus on the advantages of a decentralized approach to energy delivery the role of income generating activities in attracting modern energy services to rural areas and the barriers as well as opportunities that exist in the promotion of renewable energy technologies The African Energy Policy Research Network Afrepren has built up an enviable reputation as the Continent's foremost platform for the development African energy professionals producing policy relevant work This latest volume in their series of publications is a further contribution to addressing the practical energy needs of Sub Saharan Africa
