

The image is a promotional poster for the movie "The Maze Runner". It features three young men in a dense, green, overgrown environment. The central figure is a young man with brown hair, wearing a dark, tattered vest over a light-colored shirt. He is looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. To his left, another young man with blonde hair is partially visible, also looking forward. To his right, a young man with dark hair, wearing a cap, is looking towards the camera. The background is filled with dense foliage and trees, creating a sense of a lost or abandoned place. The title "THE MAZE RUNNER" is written in large, white, block letters across the middle of the image. The "THE" is smaller and positioned above the word "MAZE". The "MAZE" is the largest word, and "RUNNER" is the second largest. Below the title, there is a black bar with the words "FILM STUDY GUIDE" in white, bold, capital letters.

Existential Threats Lisa Vox,2017-05-12 Americans have long been enthralled by visions of the apocalypse Will the world end through nuclear war environmental degradation and declining biodiversity Or perhaps through the second coming of Christ rapture of the faithful and arrival of the Antichrist a set of beliefs known as dispensationalist premillennialism These seemingly competing apocalyptic fantasies are not as dissimilar as we might think In fact Lisa Vox argues although these secular and religious visions of the end of the world developed independently they have converged to create the landscape of our current apocalyptic imagination In Existential Threats Vox assembles a wide range of media science fiction movies biblical tractates rapture fiction to develop a critical history of the apocalyptic imagination from the late 1800s to the present. Apocalypticism was once solely a religious ideology Vox contends which has secularized in response to increasing technological and political threats to American safety. Vox reads texts ranging from Christianity Today articles on ecology and the atomic bomb to Dr Strangelove and from Mary Shelley's The Last Man to the Left Behind series by Tim LaHaye and Jerry B Jenkins demonstrating along the way that conservative evangelicals have not been as resistant to science as popularly believed and that scientists and science writers have unwittingly reproduced evangelical eschatological themes and scenarios in their own works. Existential Threats argues that American apocalypticism reflects and propagates our ongoing debates over the authority of science the place of religion uses of technology and America's evolving role in global politics
