Communicating Papal Authority in the Middle Ages Minoru Ozawa, Thomas W. Smith, Georg Strack, 2023-02-17. This book bridges Japanese and European scholarly approaches to ecclesiastical history to provide new insights into how the papacy conceptualised its authority and attempted to realise and communicate that authority in ecclesiastical and secular spheres across Christendom. Adopting a broad yet cohesive temporal and geographical approach that spans the Early to the Late Middle Ages from Europe to Asia, the book focuses on the different media used to represent authority, the structures through which authority was channelled and the restrictions that popes faced in so doing and the less certain expression of papal authority on the edges of Christendom. Through twelve chapters that encompass key topics such as anti popes, artistic representations, preaching, heresy, the crusades and mission and the East, this interdisciplinary volume brings new perspectives to bear on the medieval papacy. The book demonstrates that the communication of papal authority was a two-way process effected by the popes and their supporters but also by their enemies who helped to shape concepts of ecclesiastical power. Communicating Papal Authority in the Middle Ages will appeal to researchers and students alike interested in the relationships between the papacy and medieval society and the ways in which the papacy negotiated and expressed its authority in Europe and beyond.

Crossing Borders in the Insular Middle Ages Aisling Nora Byrne, Victoria Flood, 2019. Explores cultural connections between and across Britain, Ireland and Iceland from the high to late Middle Ages with a particular focus on literary transmission and translation.

Maritime Societies of the Viking and Medieval World James H. Barrett, Sarah Jane Gibbon, 2016-11-25. This book is a study of communities that drew their identity and livelihood from their relationships with water during a pivotal time in the creation of the social, economic and political landscapes of northern Europe. It focuses on the Baltic, North and Irish Seas in the Viking Age (AD 1050-1200) with a few later examples such as the Scottish Lordship of the Isles included to help illuminate less well documented earlier centuries. Individual chapters introduce maritime worlds ranging from the Isle of Man to Gotland while also touching on the relationships between estate centres, towns, landing places and the sea in the more terrestrially oriented societies that surrounded northern Europe's main spheres of maritime interaction. It is predominately an archaeological project but draws no arbitrary lines between the fields of historical archaeology, history and literature. The volume explores the complex relationships between long range interconnections and distinctive regional identities that are characteristic of maritime societies seeking to understand communities that were brought into being by their relationships with the sea and who set waves in motion that altered distant shores.

Empires and Barbarians Peter J. Heather, 2009. At the start of the first millennium AD, southern and western Europe formed part of the Mediterranean based Roman Empire, the largest state western Eurasia has ever known.

and was set firmly on a trajectory towards towns writing mosaics and central heating Central northern and eastern Europe was home to subsistence farmers living in wooden houses with mud floors whose largest political units weighed in at no more than a few thousand people By the year 1000 Mediterranean domination of the European landscape had been destroyed Instead of one huge Empire facing loosely organized subsistence farmers Europe from the Atlantic almost to the Urals was home to an interacting commonwealth of Christian states many of which are still with us today This book tells the story of the transformations which changed western Eurasia forever of the birth of Europe itself Provided by publisher
