Waterway David B. Williams,Jennifer Ott,HistoryLink (Firm),2017 Why does a city surrounded by water need another waterway Find out what drove Seattle s civic leaders to pursue the dream of a Lake Washington Ship Canal for more than sixty years and what role it has played in the region s development over the past century Historians Jennifer Ott and David B Williams author of Too High and Too Steep Reshaping Seattle s Topography explore how industry transportation and the very character of the city and surrounding region developed in response to the economic and environmental changes brought by

Seattle's canal and locks Stories in Stone David B. Williams, 2019-08-19 Most people do not think to observe geology from the sidewalks of a major city but all David B. Williams has to do is look at building stone in any urban center to find a range of rocks equal to any assembled by plate tectonics. In Stories in Stone he takes you on explorations to find 3.5 billion year old rock that looks like swirled pink and black taffy, a gas station made of petrified wood and a Florida fort that has withstood three hundred years of attacks and hurricanes despite being made of a stone that has the consistency of a granola bar. Williams also weaves in the cultural history of stone explaining why a white fossil rich limestone from Indiana became the only building stone used in all fifty states, how in 1825 the construction of the Bunker Hill Monument led to America's first commercial railroad and why when the same kind of marble used by Michelangelo clad a Chicago skyscraper it warped so much after nineteen years that all 44,000 panels of it had to be replaced. This love letter to building stone brings to life the geology you can see in the structures of every city. Seattle's Locks and Ship Canal David B. Williams, Jennifer Ott, 2026-04-14

Homewaters David B. Williams, 2021-04-24 An intimate biography of place and an urgent call to conservation. Not far from Seattle skyscrapers live 150 year old clams, more than 250 species of fish and underwater kelp forests as complex as any terrestrial ecosystem. For millennia vibrant Coast Salish communities have lived beside these waters dense with nutrient rich foods with cultures intertwined through exchanges across the waterways. Transformed by settlement and resource extraction, Puget Sound and its future health now depend on a better understanding of the region's ecological complexities. Focusing on the area south of Port Townsend and between the Cascade and Olympic mountains, Williams uncovers human and natural histories in on and around the Sound. In conversations with archaeologists, biologists and tribal authorities, Williams traces how generations of humans have interacted with such species as geoducks, salmon, orcas, rockfish and herring. He sheds light on how warfare shaped development and how people have moved across this maritime highway in canoes, the mosquito fleet and today's ferry system. The book also takes an unflinching look at how the Sound's ecosystems have suffered from human behavior including pollution, habitat destruction and the effects of climate change. Witty, graceful and deeply informed, Homewaters weaves history and science into a fascinating and hopeful narrative, one that will introduce newcomers to the astonishing life that inhabits the Sound and offers longtime residents new insight into and appreciation of the waters they call home. A Michael J. Repass Book Spirit Whales and Sloth Tales Elizabeth A. Nesbitt, David B. Williams, 2023-10-03 The Boathouse Leslie Jackson Chihuly, David B. Williams, William Warmus, 2023-05

This book features an exclusive glimpse into The Boathouse, the private working studio of artist Dale Chihuly and into the history of its location on the shores of Lake Union in Seattle. Inhabited for thousands of years, this area in the Pacific Northwest has witnessed significant historical changes, innovations and reinventions. Similarly, The Boathouse has been a place for Chihuly to experiment with and give birth to new projects and ideas as it was for its previous owner, renowned boatbuilder George Pocock. Inside the space is representative of Chihuly's design aesthetic, showcasing pieces from his iconic bodies of work as well as his personal collections of art and unique objects It is also home to one of the largest hot shops in the world where Chihuly and his team of glassblowers create works in glass for art installations and exhibitions at museums and gardens
