

How to use an AED

You're in the mall, and suddenly the shopper next to you collapses. On the wall is an automated external defibrillator (AED), a device that can shock a heart in cardiac arrest back into a normal rhythm. Although sending electricity through an unconscious stranger's heart may seem like something best left to a professional, AEDs can be used successfully by passersby with no training. And the sooner the better: Survival rates are near 90 percent for people treated within the first minute.

- 1 Call 911 to get the professionals moving in your direction. Have someone else do CPR chest compressions. Clear the area of flammable liquids and standing water.

- 2 Turn on the AED. Open the case (in this model, you pull the plastic cover). This will activate voice commands. If the information button flashes, press it for more info.

All clothes must be removed from the chest area.

- 3 Stick the adhesive electrode pads to the person's bare chest according to the diagram on the machine. The pad labeled "right" goes above the right nipple; the "left" one goes below the left nipple along the ribcage.

The pads have an adhesive liner.

- 4 The machine will analyze the heart rhythm and in less than eight seconds determine whether a shock is needed. No one should touch the patient during the analysis. If the device indicates, stand clear and hit the shock button.

- 5 After the shock, continue CPR until you see signs of life. The machine can fire a second time if needed. (If the machine says not to fire, continue CPR until the paramedics arrive.)

Note: Don't worry: You can't accidentally shock someone who doesn't need it. If the machine decides that the person is not in cardiac arrest, it simply won't fire.
