Trading Environments Environmental Transformation Environment:

Trading Environments Gordon M. Winder, Andreas Dix, 2015-12-07 This volume examines dynamic interactions between the calculative and speculative practices of commerce and the fruitfulness variability materiality liveliness and risks of nature It does so in diverse environments caught up in new trading relationships forged on and through frontiers for agriculture forestry mining and fishing Historical resource frontiers are understood in terms of commercial knowledge systems organized as projects to transform landscapes and environments The book asks how were environments traded and with what environmental and landscape consequences How have environments been engineered standardized and transformed within past trading systems What have been the successes and failures of economic knowledge in dealing with resource production in complex environments It considers cases from northern Europe North and South America Central Africa and New Zealand in the period between 1750 and 1990 and the contributors reflect on the effects of transnational commodity chains competing economic knowledge systems environmental ignorance and learning and resource exploitation In each case they identify tensions blind spots and environmental learning that plagued commercial projects on frontiers Making

Commons Dynamic Prateep Kumar Nayak, 2021-03-01 With an emphasis on the challenges of sustaining the commons across local to global scales Making Commons Dynamic examines the empirical basis of theorising the concepts of commonisation and decommonisation as a way to understand commons as a process and offers analytical directions for policy and practice that can potentially help maintain commons as commons in the future Focusing on commonisation decommonisation as an analytical framework useful to examine and respond to changes in the commons the chapter contributions explore how natural resources are commonised and decommonised through the influence of multi level internal and external drivers and their implications for commons governance across disparate geographical and temporal contexts It draws from a large number of geographically diverse empirical cases 20 countries in North South and Central America and South and South East Asia They involve a wide range of commons related to fisheries forests grazing wetlands coastal marine rivers and dams aquaculture wildlife tourism groundwater surface freshwater mountains small islands social movements and climate The book is a transdisciplinary endeavour with contributions by scholars from geography history sociology anthropology political studies planning human ecology cultural and applied ecology environmental and development studies environmental science and technology public policy Indigenous tribal studies Latin American and Asian studies and environmental change and governance and authors representing the commons community NGOs and policy Contributors include academics community members NGOs practitioners and policymakers Therefore commonisation decommonisation lessons drawn from these chapters are well suited for contributing to the practice policy and theory of the commons both locally and globally

Global Change in Marine Systems Patrice Guillotreau, Alida Bundy, R. Ian Perry, 2017-11-13 Global Change in Marine Systems analyses and appraises societal and governing responses to change affecting marine social and ecological systems around the world Acknowledging the stakes local societies that depend on marine systems for food livelihoods and wellbeing can suffer great hardship this book highlights and explains similarities and distinctions between successful and unsuccessful responses The book presents an analytical framework I ADaPT that enables decision makers to consider possible responses to global change based on experiences elsewhere Here an international group of researchers from the natural and social sciences apply the I ADaPT framework to twenty enlightening case studies covering a wide range of marine systems challenged by critical global change issues around the world The innovative research presented here guides marine system researchers policymakers decision makers and practitioners in responding to global change in a timely and appropriate manner It will appeal to students and researchers interested in environmental studies natural resources marine resources environmental sociology sustainability and climate change

Rio de Janeiro in the Global Meat Market, c. 1850 to c. 1930 Maria-Aparecida Lopes, 2021-07-19 This book examines the meat provision system of Rio de Janeiro from the 1850s to the 1930s Until the 1920s Rio was Brazil's economic hub main industrial city and prime consumer market Meat consumption was an indicator of living standards and a matter of public concern The work unveils that in the second half of the nineteenth century the city was well supplied with red meat Initially dwellers relied mostly on salted meat then in the latter decades of the 1800s two sets of changes upgraded fresh meat deliveries First ranching expansion and transportation innovation in southeast and central west Brazil guaranteed a continuous flow of cattle to Rio Second the municipal centralization of meat processing and distribution made its provision regular and predictable By the early twentieth century fresh meat replaced salted meat in the urban marketplace This study examines these developments in light of national and global developments in the livestock and meat industries

Landscape of Migration Ben Nobbs-Thiessen, 2020-03-19 In the wake of a 1952 revolution leaders of Bolivia's National Revolutionary Movement MNR embarked on a program of internal colonization known as the March to the East In an impoverished country dependent on highland mining the MNR sought to convert the nation's vast undeveloped Amazonian frontier into farmland hoping to achieve food security territorial integrity and demographic balance To do so they encouraged hundreds of thousands of Indigenous Bolivians to relocate from the overcrowded Andes to the tropical lowlands but also welcomed surprising transnational migrant streams including horse and buggy Mennonites from Mexico and displaced Okinawans from across the Pacific Ben Nobbs Thiessen details the multifaceted results of these migrations on the environment of the South American interior As he reveals one of the migrants with the greatest impact was the soybean which Bolivia embraced as a profitable cash crop while eschewing earlier goals of food security creating a new model for extractive export agriculture Half a century of colonization would transform the small regional capital of Santa Cruz de la Sierra into Bolivia's largest city and the diverging stories of Andean Mennonite and Okinawan migrants complicate our understandings of tradition modernity foreignness and belonging in the heart of a rising agro industrial empire

A Living Past John Soluri, Claudia Leal, José Augusto Pádua, 2018-02-19 Though still a relatively young field the study of Latin American environmental history is blossoming as the contributions to this definitive volume demonstrate Bringing together thirteen leading experts on the region A Living Past synthesizes a wide range of scholarship to offer new perspectives on environmental change in Latin America and the Spanish Caribbean since the nineteenth century Each chapter provides insightful up to date syntheses of current scholarship on critical countries and ecosystems including Brazil Mexico the Caribbean the tropical Andes and tropical forests and such cross cutting themes as agriculture conservation mining ranching science and urbanization Together these studies provide valuable historical contexts for making sense of contemporary environmental challenges facing the region Trade and Environment John W.

Maxwell, Rafael Reuveny, 2005 The papers in this volume have been selected from several papers presented at the Fondazione Eni Enrico Matte FEEM in Milano Italy in the summer of 2002 in two workshops on trade the environment and carbon flows in Europe The papers have been revised and updated Introduction Advancing Carbon Reduction and Pollution Control

Policies Management: Theoretical, Application, and Future Impacts Hui Wang, Jiachao Peng, Le Wen, 2025-10-22 The global imperative to combat climate change necessitates a strategic transition from energy consumption dual control to carbon emission dual control This shift is not only a policy evolution but also a fundamental reorientation towards sustainable development It demands a profound reassessment of energy production and consumption with a particular focus on their environmental and carbon footprints The theoretical framework for this transition is deeply rooted in ecological economics environmental justice and the pursuit of a low carbon economy The primary objective of this Research Topic is to construct a cohesive and interdisciplinary framework that integrates the theoretical and practical dimensions of the transition to carbon centric control mechanisms It is imperative to identify analyze and overcome the barriers and challenges inherent in this transition while also exploring and promoting innovative solutions that can ensure a smooth and effective transformation

Clean Energy Transition and Load Capacity Factors: Environmental Sustainability Assessment through Advanced Statistical Methods, 2nd edition Zeeshan Fareed, Farrukh Shahzad, Solomon Prince Nathaniel, 2025-09-11 Both developed and developing countries are concerned about sustainable development and reducing environmental burdens Environmental degradation is the deterioration of environmental quality caused by pollutants in the air as well as other activities and processes such as poor land use and natural disasters Although carbon dioxide emissions and ecological footprint are commonly used by academics to quantify environmental degradation assessing environmental sustainability requires a more complex and comprehensive ecological indicator In this context the load capacity factor allows for a comprehensive assessment of environmental sustainability by considering biocapacity and ecological footprint simultaneously The ratio of per capita biocapacity to per capita ecological footprint is called the load capacity factor This environmental quality indicator allows for environmental assessment from both a supply and demand perspective In this context discussion of the determinants of the load capacity factor is an important Research Topic One way to combat environmental degradation is through the clean energy transition The transition to clean energy can determine the environmental quality and thus load capacity The transition to clean energy is a strategy to combat environmental damage Previous empirical research used traditional environmental metrics carbon emissions and ecological footprint and outdated statistical methods to examine the influence of the energy transition on environmental degradation Their results are contradictory and inconclusive Therefore to uncover a true link between the transition to renewable energy and environmental degradation the current Research Topic requires unique statistical methods In this Research Topic we welcome new discussions that explore the relationship between load capacity factor clean energy transition and other macroeconomic indicators using recent time series and panel data analyses For this Research Topic we are looking for Original Research Review new techniques and methodologies We look forward to receiving unique and creative contributions that focus on but are not limited to the following topics Total renewable energy and load capacity factor Sustainable development goals through load capacity factor Energy transition and load capacity factor Energy poverty and load capacity factor Wind energy and load capacity factor Hydro energy and load capacity factor Geothermal energy and load capacity factor Solar energy and load capacity factor Novel empirical methods time series panel data to measure the energy load capacity factor relationship

The Global Trading System: 'New issues for the WTO' Kym Anderson, Bernard M. Hoekman, 2002

The Routledge Handbook of Tourism and the Environment Andrew Holden, David A. Fennell, 2012-08-21 The Routledge Handbook of Tourism and the Environment explores and critically evaluates the debates and controversies inherent to tourism's relationship with nature especially pertinent at a time of major re-evaluation of our relationship with the environment as a consequence of the environmental problems we now face It brings together leading specialists from range of disciplinary backgrounds and geographical regions to provide state of the art theoretical reflection and empirical research on this complex relationship and future direction The book is divided into five interrelated sections Section one evaluates the philosophical basis rationale and complexity of what is meant by the term environment considering the major influences in the construction of how we understand our surroundings and the types of values we place upon them Section two evaluates the types of eco systems that are used as natural resources for tourism and the negative and positive impacts upon them Section three evaluates relevant environmental policy and management mechanisms for the impacts of tourism on the natural environment Section four focuses on the changing tourism environment relationship and the types of tourism that have become established in the tourism industry market and policy Section five analyzes contemporary and future issues of the tourism environment relationship based upon themes of environmental and social welfare This timely book will provide an invaluable resource for all those with an interest in tourism's relationship with the natural environment encouraging dialogue across disciplinary boundaries and areas of study The book is international in its focus emphasizing that issues of tourism and the natural environment are not only localized but transcend national boundaries that sometimes require both international and global responses This is essential reading for student researchers and academics of Tourism as well as those of Geography Environmental Studies and Development Studies Evolutionary Genetics and Environmental Stress Ary A. Hoffmann, Peter Angas Parsons, 1991 Although unpredictable and of short duration periods of extreme environmental stress have been found to occur throughout the entire course of evolution This book concentrates on the evolutionary changes that take place during these critical periods when populations are driven to the extreme limits of resistance Accumulating evidence suggests that it is precisely during such moments that fundamental changes in the natural order of systems are likely both in terms of species extinctions and bursts of evolutionary activity This study thus offers much potential for understanding the basic forces underlying the development of life on our planet The book is necessarily multidisciplinary in approach with an emphasis on the interaction between ecology genetics physiology and the study of behavior and development The book concludes with a discussion of the range expansion of species and insightful observations regarding conservation strategies under rapidly changing conditions including those created by environmental pollution International Environmental Auditing David D.

Requirements and Market Access ,2005-12-05 Do environmental regulations block exports from developing countries Whose responsibility is it to ensure that exports do not end up rotting in the ports of destination Are voluntary environmental standards like for organic foods in fact obligatory for any developing country exporter who wants to stay in the market Or do such environmental requirements actually increase export opportunities while reducing environmental impacts and making products safer Investigating over twenty cases where exports from developing countries faced new environmental requirements this OECD report addresses these and other questions These case studies covering a diverse number of products and exporting countries trace a number of environmental regulations standards and labelling schemes from conception through implementation In so doing they highlight the difference that sensitivity to potential trade effects can make when designing environmental regulations and standards They also show that timely technical assistance has played a crucial role in helping exporters from developing countries adjust to new environmental requirements without suffering adverse trade effects
