UNESCO science report UNESCO, 2015-11-09 There are fewer grounds today than in the past to deplore a North South divide in research and innovation This is one of the key findings of the UNESCO Science Report towards 2030 A large number of countries are now incorporating science technology and innovation in their national development agenda in order to make their economies less reliant on raw materials and more rooted in knowledge Most research and development R D is taking place in high income countries but innovation of some kind is now occurring across the full spectrum of income levels according to the first survey of manufacturing companies in 65 countries conducted by the UNESCO Institute for Statistics and summarized in this report For many lower income countries sustainable development has become an integral part of their national development plans for the next 10 20 years Among higher income countries a firm commitment to sustainable development is often coupled with the desire to maintain competitiveness in global markets that are increasingly leaning towards green technologies The quest for clean energy and greater energy efficiency now figures among the research priorities of numerous countries Written by more than 50 experts who are each covering the country or region from which they hail the UNESCO Science Report towards 2030 provides more country level information than ever before The trends and developments in science technology and innovation policy and governance between 2009 and mid 2015 described here provide essential baseline information on the concerns and priorities of countries that could orient the implementation and drive the assessment of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development in the years to come Drum, 2009 Journal for the Study of Religion, 2005 Research and development Tshwane University of Technology, 2005 Pretoria Street

Salome Xaba, 2015 All universities and colleges have physical or traditional admission and registration systems in place. In addition, some partially automated systems like course registration where current students have to login and electronically enroll in courses of interest are also in use. Some major admission processes, however, are still not fully automated. An online enrollment system was introduced at the Tshwane University of Technology (TUT) in 2006 with a view to enable students to apply and register online and acquire valuable information from databases that belong to the Registrar's Office at TUT. Since 2006, the online system of registration at TUT has been improved in phases. The online system of registration is designed in order to enable students to register for subjects prior to the commencement of their semesters. The aim of his study is to assess how effectively students utilize the online system of enrollment at TUT. The impact of an introduction of and transition to a self-service administration module will be discussed with regard to customer satisfaction.

Business School, 2007. Currently, one of the most serious challenges faced by South African Universities is the fact that less than a quarter of tertiary students graduate after five years. The objective of this research study is to determine the various reasons why master students do not complete their studies in the prescribed time duration. It is predicted that the outcome of this research will point to the fact that there is a positive correlation between proposal formulation, supervisor support, and other associated factors and the success of masters students.
