Death Toll, Source of Devastating Attacks Remain Unclear; U.S. Vows Retaliation as Attention Focuses on bin Laden

By [illegible] and [illegible]
Sept. 11, 2001

The Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C., have shocked the world and raised questions about the security of the United States. The attacks, which killed thousands of people, were carried out by al-Qaeda, a radical Islamic group led by Osama bin Laden. The U.S. government has vowed retaliation and is now focusing attention on bin Laden.

The attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon were the deadliest in U.S. history. The World Trade Center, a symbol of New York City, was destroyed. The Pentagon, the headquarters of the U.S. Department of Defense, was hit by a hijacked jet. The attacks were carried out by 19 hijackers who flew commercial airliners into the buildings.

The U.S. government has vowed retaliation and is now focusing attention on bin Laden. The U.S. military has launched a search for bin Laden and his associates. The U.S. government has also launched a campaign of airstrikes against al-Qaeda targets in Afghanistan.

The attacks have also led to a new era of security. The U.S. government has implemented a series of measures to protect against future attacks, including increased screening of passengers and baggage at airports, and the creation of the Department of Homeland Security.
