

SPEED READING DEBUNKED

Is it a Viable Revision Technique?

'Evelyn Nielsen Wood' came up with the phrase in the 1950's.

Rapidly process and recognise phrases on a page all at once.

Speed readers estimated to read 1000-1700 words per minute.

Cut down on sub-vocalisation (voicing words in your head)

Focus on blocks of words rather than individual ones (skim read).

Run a pen below the text you're reading (focus above the tip).

The faster you read, the less information you'll take in.

You're unlikely to retain much information initially.

If your subject is completely new to you or complex then it's unsuited.

Good revision requires you to read less than 100 words per minute.

Stay clear of distractions if you are to attempt speed reading.

Knowing what you want to know will speed up your comprehension.
