Ziemann - the Original Classic Edition FL Gillette & Hugo Ziemann,2011 This is a high quality book of the original classic edition It was previously published by other bona fide publishers and is now finally back in print This is a freshly published edition of this culturally important work which is now at last again available to you Enjoy this classic work These few paragraphs distill the contents and gives you a short overview and insight of this work and the author s style The first cut to be made in carving a fore quarter of lamb is to separate the shoulder from the breast and ribs this is done by passing a sharp carving knife lightly around the dotted line as shown by the figs 3 4 and 5 so as to cut through the skin and then by raising with a little force the shoulder into which the fork should be firmly fixed it will easily separate with just a little more cutting with the knife care should be taken not to cut away too much of the meat from the breast when dividing the shoulder from it as that would mar its appearance A haunch of venison is the prime joint and is carved very similar to almost any roasted or boiled leg it should be first cut crosswise down to the bone following the line from 1 to 2 then turn the platter with the knuckle farthest from you put in the point of the knife and cut down as far as you can in the directions shown by the dotted lines from 3 to 4 then there can be taken out as many slices as is required on the right and left of this Cut best end of mutton into cutlets dividing it with two bones in each take off nearly all fat before you put it into broth skim the moment the meat boils and every ten minutes afterwards add carrots turnips and onions all cut into two or three pieces then put them into soup soon enough to be thoroughly done stir in barley add salt to taste let all stew together for three and one half hours about one half hour before sending it to table put in little chopped parsley and serve Take a slice of raw ham which has been pickled but not smoked and soak in boiling water for half an hour cut it in quite small pieces and put in a saucepan with two thirds of a pint of veal or chicken broth well strained the liquor from a quart of oysters one small onion minced fine a little chopped parsley sweet marjoram and pepper let them simmer for twenty minutes and then boil rapidly for two or three minutes skim well and add one scant tablespoon of cornstarch mixed smoothly in one third cup of milk stir constantly and when it boils add the oysters and one ounce of butter after which just let it come to a boil and remove the oysters to a deep dish beat one egg and add to it gradually some of the hot broth and when cooked stir it into the pan season with salt and pour the whole over the oysters Procure a nice breast or brisket of veal well jointed put the pieces into the pot with one quart of water to every five pounds of meat put the pot over a slow fire just before it comes to a boil skim it well and pour in a teacupful of cold water then turn over the meat in order that all the scum may rise remove all the scum boil quite hard season with pepper and salt to your taste always remembering that the crust will take up part of the seasoning when this is done cut off your crust in pieces of equal size but do not roll or mould them lay them on top of the meat so as to cover it put the lid on the pot closely let the whole boil slowly one hour     The White House Cookbook Hugo Ziemann, Fanny Lemira Gillette, 2003
