Valeria Skafida,2025-12-16 This monograph explores the lives of mothers and children living with domestic violence and abuse This title initially focuses on issues around methods measurement and reflexive accounts of researching domestic abuse through survey data Our knowledge and understanding of domestic violence and abuse experiences across the population are only as good as the data we collect The book examines legacy surveys which still influence today s data landscape globally it critically examines the data currently being collected in the UK context and queries who is missing in the survey data we collect It also engages with important questions around how can we talk about perpetrators of violence and abuse when we mostly have data on victims The book then takes a deep dive into what a cohort study tells us about social inequalities in mothers experiences of domestic abuse focusing on how overlapping aspects of poverty and disadvantage place mothers and children in vulnerable situations Domestic abuse experiences have obvious repercussions for mothers while there are also repercussions for children which this book explores by looking at children s physical chastisement and children s social and emotional development in the context of living with parental domestic violence and abuse Ending with a discussion around what appropriate policy responses need to consider both in terms of services targeted directly at domestic violence and abuse victims survivors and perpetrators as well as broader policy responses which could seek to address the high levels of poverty and inequality which families and particularly women and children face in the UK It will be of interest to all scholars students and professionals working within social policy social work domestic violence and sociology and those using quantitative methodological approaches in this space Family Violence in the United States

Denise A. Hines,Kathleen Malley-Morrison,Leila B. Dutton,2020-08-24 Family Violence in the United States takes an ecological approach to examining violence and abuse within the context of families Easy to read chapters are organized by exploring the Scope of the Problem definitions of key terminology predictors and consequences of different forms of maltreatment Attention is paid to larger social systems that can contribute to abuse as well as community relationship and individual predictors of both perpetration and victimization Additionally there is an emphasis on both prevention and intervention of family violence at various levels of the ecological model Authors Denise A Hines Kathleen Malley Morrison and Leila B Dutton help students explore what family violence is and the reasons why it happens Their approach covers contemporary and controversial topics across the lifespan including maltreatment of male partners by women of parents within sexual minority relationships and on college campuses This 3rd edition is filled with chapter opening cases to prompt discussion within the classroom as well as considerations of context and application in the larger community Rich in scholarly references and case materials it is suitable for advanced undergraduates graduate students and professionals alike

Approaches to Measurement in International Relations John E. Mueller,1969 The Dark Side of Families David Finkelhor,1983 This unique volume attests to the coming of age of research on family violence Leading authorities in this interdisciplinary area including psychologists sociologists social work researchers and physicians provide a comprehensive survey of current studies and controversies They offer useful insights into such ongoing concerns as wife battering and child neglect and abuse and criteria for distinguishing when child abuse or marital violence have actually taken place They also explore relatively new areas of research such as child sexual abuse and marital rape Representing the best of a decade of empirical theoretical and clinical work this book should be required reading for academics professionals and students who are interested in or must deal with family violence Many of the most widely recognized and respected researchers on family violence contributed to this state of the art volume The Dark Side of Families presents a multitude of perspectives and research approaches useful to service providers policymakers and researchers This collection presents information and insight that will be valuable to all who are interested and concerned about the problem of family violence Response Represents the state of the art in theorizing about and researching family violence Will supplant earlier volumes of collected papers such as Joanne Cook and Roy Tyler Bowless's Child Abuse 1980 Choice The style of presentation is scholarly indicating greater theoretical and methodological sophistication in research on family violence and abuse than in the past Planned Parenthood An essential reference for the serious researcher containing brief reports by many of the major family violence researchers in the country The major contribution of the book is its methodological contributions Many of the papers in the book deal with measurement techniques and other methodological concerns It is in this domain that marital violence and child abuse researchers have the most to offer one another Careful reading of these papers would be essential for anyone seriously studying family violence Contemporary Sociology Women Arrested for Domestic Violence Amy Lou Busch,2001
