These are recommendations from a working group of experts in gender and health issues and the gender and development field. They are not intended to be exhaustive, but are a starting point for further discussion and action.

the two countries seemed to enjoy their country's unique culture. The Japanese would come and taught their culture and their own culture to a different generation. I think they who practice their culture are happy and proud because they believe and always continue learning for the betterment from the culture the more it is kept.
