Preventive Strategies on Suicide Diekstra, Gulbinat, Kienhorst, Leo, 2023-07-31 Recent estimates by The World Health Organisation and The World Bank indicate that throughout the world each and every year more than 800 000 persons die as a consequence of suicide This means that the death toll of suicide equals and in many countries even exceeds that of road traffic accidents In addition to the number of suicidal deaths at least ten times as many persons make non fatal attempts to take their lives or harm themselves often seriously enough to require medical attention and not infrequently resulting in irreversible disability But still these figures inadequately describe the magnitude of human loss and suffering caused by suicide If one assumes that for every suicidal death there are at least five persons whose lives are profoundly and often for many years affected by the event emotionally socially and economically by the event then each year millions of survivor victims are added to the tens of millions already out there Hence suicide is an ever recurring catastrophe of the first degree It is not a phenomenon that first and foremost forms a dubious privilege of the so called highly developed countries Suicide also occurs in the developing countries and there is more than suggestive evidence that in several of these countries the suicide rate equals or even surpasses the highest national rates shown by official statistics It follows that suicide is an extremely important public health problem It is however a problem that is painfully neglected Throughout the world resources devoted to the prevention of suicide are only a tiny fraction of those devoted to the prevention of comparable problems such as road traffic accidents or to problems of lesser magnitude at least in the industrialized countries such as HIV infection and Aids This volume produced under the supervision and auspices of the World Health Organization brings together for the first time information on epidemiological clinical and preventive intervention aspects regarding suicide that have global significance and applicability After a detailed description of the epidemiology of suicide and suicidal behaviour on an international scale a large part of the book is devoted to the how to's of developing and organizing suicide prevention programs and services in different national and cultural settings both at clinical and community level In addition a wealth of practical information for health care workers and volunteers is provided on how to evaluate and deal with acute suicide risk Examples of successful preventive intervention programs and projects from the developed as well as the developing world are provided Legal and ethical problems involved in suicide prevention are also discussed Finally both cultural and biological aspects of suicidal behaviour as well as their clinical practice relevance are examined Understanding Suicidal Behaviour Kees van Heeringen, 2001-06-08 How can suicide be prevented and treated by mental health professionals This book offers a clinical guide to the assessment treatment and prevention of suicidal behaviour from a new and useful theoretical perspective a developmental process approach The book presents the arguments and research evidence that suicidal behaviour is not just a response to current emotional crises but is influenced by persistent characteristics that can be defined in psychological and biological terms The authors bring together research based evidence that establishes three key aspects of the developmental process approach suicidal behaviour results from the interaction between stressful life events and an individual vulnerability this individual vulnerability is itself the product of psychobiological factors genetics and past life events vulnerability in this sense influences how the individual perceives interprets and reacts to adverse life events perhaps leading to hopelessness and suicidal behaviour Psychologists psychiatrists nurses and other mental health practitioners will appreciate the conceptual and clinical value of this book based on its Description of biological and psychological developmental processes leading to suicide integrating evidence based information from a broad range of disciplines Psychobiological definition of long and short term risk factors for suicide and innovative approach to psychological and biological targets for treatment and prevention Cutting edge discussion of implications for the study and treatment of suicidal behaviour by some of the leading authorities in the field The Wish to Die Lee Peng Kok, 1993 International Handbook of Suicide Prevention Rory C. O'Connor, Stephen Platt, Jacki Gordon, 2011-06-03 The International Handbook of Suicide Prevention showcases the latest cutting edge research from the world's leading authorities and highlights policy and practice implications for the prevention of suicide Brings together the world's leading authorities on suicidal behaviour renowned for their suicide prevention research policy and practice Addresses the key questions of why people attempt suicide the best interventions treatments and care for those at risk and the key international challenges in trying to prevent suicide Describes up to date theoretically derived and evidence based research and practice from across the globe which will have implications across countries cultures and the lifespan Suicide Prevention Navneet Kapur, Robert D. Goldney, 2019-09-23 Over recent years research into suicidal behaviour has burgeoned and the third edition of this successful pocketbook reflects major developments in the evidence base and clinical practice New chapters cover risk assessment and system wide approaches to suicide prevention and the role of clinical guidelines and national policies is also considered This edition features extensive updates to the epidemiology of suicidal behaviour across the world and also considers the individual and societal causes of suicide particularly the effect of recent economic downturns in many countries The chapter on biological factors includes the current research on the genetics and neuroscience of suicide The chapters on interventions discuss the latest evidence from systematic reviews and new randomized controlled trials and highlight implications for clinical practice The positive and negative impacts of the web and social media on suicidal behaviour are a major focus of research activity and new sections have been included to reflect this The Frequently Asked Questions section was well received in the previous edition and this has been revised further to include new updated FAQs on euthanasia assisted suicide and suicide martyrdom Part of the Oxford Psychiatry Library series this useful handbook is an invaluable resource and quick reference guide

Suicidal Behaviour Jürgen Kind, 1999 Looking at the problem of suicide and suicidal behaviour from a psychoanalytical perspective Kind analyses the various motivations for such impulses and the therapist's countertransference reactions to a suicidal patient Therapeutic strategies for dealing with threatened or actual suicide are evaluated within the clinical context Suicidal patients for example may provoke emotions of anger guilt and helplessness in their therapists these emotions only intensify if a patient makes a successful suicide attempt The issue of guilt is used by Kind as a starting point for his exploration of what suicidal behaviour actually represents He bases his analysis on clinical observations made during therapy with psychosomatic patients neurotics and patients with borderline disorders The dynamics of transference and countertransference object relations transitional domains and types of interaction both within the patient and between the patient and the therapist are discussed Understanding the origins of suicidal impulses makes it possible for the therapist to cope with his or her own reactions to the patient's behaviour This book provides an insightful and comprehensive study which will be of interest to all those working in mental health care and related professions

Biological Aspects of Suicidal Behavior W.P., Kaschka, D., Rujescu, 2015-10-12 Suicide is one of the most important causes of death in modern societies To develop more effective preventive measures we have to be aware of and learn more about its neurobiological foundations In recent years the tools of modern neurosciences have increasingly been utilized to characterize the pathophysiology of complex human behaviors such as suicide To improve suicide risk assessment and suicide prevention a better understanding of its pathophysiology is crucial This includes research from a variety of disciplines such as neuropsychological psychosocial and cultural studies but also findings from biochemistry neuropathology electrophysiology immunology neuroimaging genetics and epigenetics Important results have for example been obtained in the field of gene environment interaction and suicidal behavior We have just begun to understand how early life adversity may increase suicide risk by epigenetic mechanisms Based on such insights novel therapeutic interventions and preventive measures can be developed Furthermore a better understanding of the pathophysiological mechanisms involved in suicidal behavior could reveal the mechanism of compounds like lithium salts In this book suicidal behavior and its prevention is discussed by international experts in the light of the most recent results from a broad spectrum of neurosciences

Cognitive Behavioural Prevention of Suicide in Psychosis Nicholas

Tarrier,Patricia Gooding,Daniel Pratt,James Kelly,Yvonne Awenat,Janet Maxwell,2013-03-05 This practical and informative text lays out the product of a number of years of clinical research into suicide behaviour and its prevention While the focus is on non affective psychosis and the schizophrenia spectrum disorders the mechanisms underlying suicide behaviour in this group may well underlie or at least influence suicide behaviour in other disorders The authors describe methods of assessment through individual formulation and a cognitive behavioural intervention through case studies to reduce the risk of suicide This book argues that Suicide behaviour lies on a cognitive behavioural continuum from ideation through intention to action Mechanisms based on biased information processing systems the development of suicide schema and appraisal styles are likely to be fruitful in explaining suicidal thoughts and behaviours A psychological theory of suicide behaviour is needed in order to develop a mechanism of suicide and to understand the components of suicidal thoughts and behaviours Suicide risk can be reduced through the use of the intervention methods described within the text Cognitive Behavioural Prevention of Suicide in Psychosis evaluates practical applications of contemporary research on this topic and will therefore be of interest to practitioners post graduates in training and researchers studying suicide and or psychosis
