What Did You Do In The Cold War Dad:

What Did You Do in the Cold War Daddy? Ann Curthoys, Joy Damousi, 2014-09-01 The Cold War was a turbulent time to grow up in. Family ties were tested, friendships were torn apart and new beliefs forged out of the ruins of old loyalties. In this book, through twelve evocative stories of childhood and early adulthood in Australia during the Cold War years, writers from vastly different backgrounds explore how global political events affected the intimate space of home family life and friendships. Some writers were barely in their teens when they felt the first touches of their parents' political lives both on the Left and the Right. Others grew up in households well attuned to activism across the spectrum including anti communism, workers rights, anti Vietnam War, anti apartheid and women's rights. Sifting through the key political and social developments in Australia from the end of World War II to the early 1990s including the referendum to ban the Communist Party of Australia, the rise of the Movement and the Labor split and post war migration, this book is a powerful and poignant telling of the ways in which the political is personal.

What Did You Do in the War, Daddy? Australian War Memorial, 1983 The propaganda poster began to flourish with the advent of the Great War and became a medium not only for symbolising the devious, cunning, barbaric tactics and ruthlessness of the enemy but also for focusing popular opinion at home. The war poster presents quite a different emphasis from most other art forms in that it seeks not to enlarge the vision and perception of the viewer but to restrict that person's range of opinion and belief. As the Introduction to this volume makes clear, a successful poster was capable of only one interpretation. The Australian war poster developed the archetypes of Australian mythology: the digger with his upturned hat, broad chest and firm jaw; the loyal wife on the homestead spurring the menfolk on; the powerful symbols of Flag and Empire. Norman Lindsay produced a number of aggressively anti German cartoons for The Bulletin depicting the enemy as vicious and often cowardly brutes. In 1918, Lindsay took this to a peak by producing a poster depicting a German Ogre with blood stained hands grasping the globe. Not all posters were as dramatic as this. Many responded purely to patriotism and increasing in the 1939-1945 war conveyed pragmatic details of war security measures, the need to conserve food and fuel resources and the effort made by workers at home. This selection of war posters from the collection of the Australian War Memorial is international in scope and includes examples from the 1914-1918 and 1939-1945 wars and the Korean and Vietnam wars. Included are posters from Australia, the United States, Great Britain, South Africa, France, Germany, Vietnam, Egypt, the Philippines, Soviet Union, Canada, Malaya, Ceylon and New Zealand. Dust jacket.
