Sundiata An Epic Of Old Mali Text:

African Novels in the Classroom Margaret Jean Hay, 2000 Many teachers of African studies have found novels to be effective assignments in courses In this guide teachers describe their favourite African novels drawn from all over the continent and share their experiences of using them in the classroom Sundiata Djibril Tamsir Niane, 1965 The son of Sogolon the hunchback princess and Maghan known as the handsome Sundiata grew up to fulfill the prophesies of the soothsayers that he would unite the twelve kingdoms of Mali into one of the most powerful empires ever known in Africa which at its peak stretched right across the savanna belt from the shores of the Atlantic to the dusty walls of Timbuktu Retold by generations of griots the guardians of African culture this oral tradition has been handed down from the thirteenth century and captures all the mystery and majesty of medieval African kingship It is an epic tale part history and part legend cultural contestation with the imperial politics of knowledge production about others and as an ideological strategy for knowing them The book's main contribution to the critical discourse on African literature and culture inheres in the fact that politics constitutes the enduring concern of society as it re-shapes and over-determines discourses which have continued to remain crucial to societal engineering It however imagines the discursive existence as necessary for the evolving of a dynamic African literary tradition with an abiding fidelity to the verities of history The book is useful for literary scholars historians critics experts and students of postcolonial cultural studies as well as general readership interested in African studies

African Literature and Its Times Joyce Moss, Lorraine Valestuk, 2000 This volume focuses on major fiction poetry and non-fiction from Africa Organized by title it discusses 50 works through detailed essays

Toward the Decolonization of the Europhone African Novel Peter Wuteh Vakunta, 2023-09-30 Toward the Decolonization of the Europhone African Novel is a treatise on the problematics of language choice in Europhone African literature Vakunta's research is rooted in the notion that the postcolonial African fiction writer is at a crossroads of languages groping for linguistic re-orientation Using the prose of fiction of Patrice Nganang Ahmadou Kourouma Mercedes Fouda Nazi Boni and Gabriel K Fonkou as corpus he contends that postcolonial African fiction is an offshoot of a linguistic tinkering process that enables writers to tinker with the language of the ex-colonizer in a deliberate attempt to divest indigenous writing of its hegemonic vestiges

The Place of Core Texts Association for Core Texts and Courses. Conference, 2008-03-13 The focus of this book is on the theme of liberal education Some contributors explore our common humanity particularly the humanity of our teachers and students Others explore the dialogue of ideas the conversation that takes place across texts cultures and time Perhaps most importantly there is in these pages the primary conversation between the text and the student which teachers attempt to aid and cultivate Where it is the good life good artwork or the goodness of science all of the papers argue the criteria of inclusion for works in curricula as well as the purposes and means of core text programs Thus administrators scholars from all walks of academic life and dedicated teachers in the liberal arts will find themselves in the conversations of this book Whether one honors the ancients honors the moderns and postmoderns or honors the conversation between the three this is a must-read for all college and university professors seriously concerned with liberal arts educations and its texts
