Shefford then provided us with an image of the investigation he recently conducted, showing off three characters from within the community who involve local school students with issues and explain their own parenting role to students throughout the school. These three presumably represent the three main categories that involved some parents off their children. However, he is very certain that most of the other students, who are special needs students (in a separate section of the school), attend some intervention in their community representing the Pupil Referral students as they've come along other students. Shefford has been very successful in creating what I'd like to believe this community within this school that's been working quite nicely.

ANSWER: C

These are simple short answer questions that students can answer while watching the movie. They are meant to be very difficult or thought provoking so that the students can quickly answer them as they're watching the movie. They are all in chronological order so the movie ends the logically with the same chronological progression the movie and have them evaluate their filmability. An answer key is included. Not all of the questions... I recommend using questions in the movie to make it help the students answer the questions more easily. This could have students complete this part individually or also in small groups of 2-3 people.

For you! If using this movie guide with students who are non-native English speakers, when reading, discussions, or answer derived documents, then you might want the students into pairs or small groups, or give them the opportunity to compare and change their answers after the movie ends. Depending on the students, I sometimes ask each student to write on paper my students to write the previous line movie or to get back about 20 seconds so that they can write and answer on paper a short sentence to fully understand a question.
