intellectual history for the period 1783-1900. In writing it Davies quotes liberally from contemporary letters and newspapers which make lively reading and he has had access to the many scrapbooks and voluminous papers of William McDowell prominent in the founding of several hereditary groups which shed new light on the early years of the D A R and the S A R in particular. His book will be read with interest by the general public by historians and especially by persons who have belonged to any of the organizations he describes
