International Politics Region USA grade 1 Macquarie University language English abstract Look Mr President everything that the Secretary of Defense has been telling you this morning I used to listen to with my French friends They talked about the fact that there was always a new plan and that was going to win the day And they believed it just as much as we re believing it sitting around the table this morning I can tell you however that in the end there was a great disillusion And there will be one George Ball 1971 In spite of the advice given to him by his Under Secretary of State George Ball United States President Lyndon B Johnson decided on the 27th July 1965 to push ahead and increase military forces from 75 000 to 125 000 in Vietnam With this decision Johnson escalated the American intervention in Vietnam and made what has been seen as the formal decision for a major war The inability and to an extent unwillingness to foresee that the conflict was going to be as catastrophic as it turned out to be is what lead Robert McNamara Secretary of Defence to say that the Johnson administration s greatest failure of all was Vietnam It was not until April 1975 and then under President Gerald Ford that the United States would finally withdraw from Vietnam following a defeat of the South Vietnamese forces and a reunification of the country under the leadership of Prime Minister Pham Van Dong With approximately 58 000 American casualties not to mention the estimated 1 5 million Vietnamese killed this military intervention continues to be seen as a sore point of American history

Re-examining the Cold War Robert S. Ross,Changbin Jiang,2001 The twelve essays in this volume underscore the similarities between Chinese and American approaches to bilateral diplomacy and between their perceptions of each other s policy making motivations Much of the literature on U S China relations posits that each side was motivated either by ideologically informed interests or by ideological assumptions about its counterpart But as these contributors emphasize newly accessible archives suggest rather than both Beijing and Washington developed a responsive and tactically adaptable foreign policy Each then adjusted this policy in response to changing international circumstances and changing assessments of its counterpart s policies Motivated less by ideology than by pragmatic national security concerns each assumed that the other faced similar considerations Bring Learning Alive! Teachers Curr,Bert Bower,Jim Lobdell,Sherry Owens,2005 U.
