Thatch And Thatching Shire Library:

Thatch and Thatching Jacqueline Fearn, 1976 Thatching is a craft most people know nothing about and which is commonly thought to be dying out. This book outlines the history of thatching in Britain from its use as the commonest form of roofing and explains how the thatcher works with his traditional materials

Specifications for Building

Conservation Rory Cullen, Rick Meier, 2017-09-19 In Specifications for Building Conservation the National Trust draws on a range of case studies and specifications to provide a much needed guide to specification writing for building conservation. Although traditional building accounts for approximately a quarter of all buildings in the UK the old skills and understanding required for their care and maintenance have been increasingly eroded over the last century. As the largest heritage charity in Europe the National Trust has a first class reputation for high standards of conservation and care and in this three volume set the Trust brings together a remarkable pool of expertise to guide conservation professionals and students through the process of successful specification writing. This first book focusses on the materials used for the external fabric detailing successful approaches employed by the National Trust at some of their most culturally significant sites. A range of studies have been carefully selected for their interest diversity and practicality showcasing projects from stonework repairs on the magnificent Grade I listed Hardwick Hall to the re thatching of the traditional cottages of the Holnicote Estate. Complete with a practical Conservation Management Plan checklist this book will enable practitioners to develop their skills allowing them to make informed decisions when working on a range of project types. This is the first practical guide to specification writing for building conservation and the advice provided by the National Trust experts will be of interest to any practitioners and students involved in building conservation both in the UK and beyond. Profits generated from the sale of this publication will go to the National Trust Building Apprenticeship Scheme. This provides placements for traditional skills at National Trust properties

Woodland Craftsmen Ivan

George Sparkes, 1977 Much interest surrounds the story of woodland crafts and the men who worked amongst the trees making the domestic and agricultural implements that were once familiar to all but have now disappeared almost as completely as the dedicated craftsmen themselves. All over Britain there were centres for rake makers, bowl turners and chairmakers while in the Midlands the clogger played an essential part in industrial life. The tools they used were in general common to all the woodland crafts but each trade had some kind of break or horse or special cutting tool that was designed for a particular task and was peculiar to that craft. It is fortunate that over the years a number of writers have photographed and made detailed reports on these craftsmen and their products and that several museums such as the Salaman Collection at St Albans and the Museum of English Rural Life at Reading founded collections of the tools before they completely disappeared. These documents and artefacts are now of the greatest social importance for the woodland crafts with their economical use of natural materials provided an unlimited supply of essential objects for use in village life long before such objects were mass produced Country Life, 2002 The Agricultural Gazette and Modern Farming, 1909 Vernacular Buildings in a Changing World Sarah Pearson, Robert Meeson, 2001 This book focuses on the theories and practices for analysing and recording the vast range of small historic buildings that constitute the core element of Britain's built landscape. It examines what has been done and what still needs to be achieved to preserve and understand our architectural heritage. Chapters explore the historic context of the discipline the significant increase in the amount and type of building recording following new government policy guidance procedures the necessity for informed conservation to rest on detailed understanding of particular buildings the problems encountered by professional consultants the development of new research techniques and applications education the role of voluntary recorders and the pressing needs to better storage and access for records List of Accessions to the Library Science Museum (Great Britain).
