Affected Models: RM100/125

NOTICE:

This bulletin is issued to advise your Service Department as to the differences in setting the ignition timing on the RM100 & RM125.

Although the component parts used on each model are identical, the correct positioning of the stator plate is different. This is due to the difference in ignition timing requirements; 22° at 6,000 rpm for the RM 100 and 29° at 6,000 rpm for the RM 125.

Therefore, the stator plate's top mounting hole has two punch marks for alignment with the crankcase holes center. The left one is for RM125's and the right one is for RM 100's as illustrated.

RM125

RM100

For optimum performance, be sure the correct mark is used for alignment on the appropriate model.

The ignition timing can also be checked using a dial indicator using the following procedure:

1. Install a dial indicator into the spark plug hole and zero the dial at TDC.
2. Rotate the engine backwards (clockwise) 2.26/3.8mm (RM100/RM125) from TDC. At this exact position the center alignment mark on the rotor should align with the center stationary mark on the stator.
3. If not, loosen the stator mounting screws and move the stator until the marks do align. Then retighten mounting screws.
