Framing Asian Studies Albert Tzeng,2018-05-24 This book explores the interconnection between geopolitical context and the ways this context frames our knowledge about Asia highlighting previously neglected cause effect relations It also examines how various knowledge institutions promote and shape Asian Studies The authors seek to explain why Asian Studies and its subfields developed in the way they did and what the implications of these transformations might be on intellectual and political understandings of Asia The book not only builds on the current debates on the decolonization and de imperialization of knowledge about Asia it also proposes a more multifaceted view rather than just examining the impact of the West on the framing of Asian Studies Islam in Indonesia Jajat Burhanudin,Kees van Dijk,2013-01-31 While Muslims

Religion Willem Hofstee,2012-05 The American anthropologist Clifford Geertz 1926 2006 has presented a description of religion which has made him one of the most influential key thinkers in the study of religion His ethnographic work based on minute research mainly in Morocco and Indonesia is impressive and testifies to a great stylistic ability Moreover his theory about culture and the role played by religion as a cultural system within it can be considered as being one of the most intriguing and widely discussed conceptual frameworks brought forth up to now Geertz work is influenced not only by Durkheim and Weber but also by Wittgenstein Ryle and Ricoeur It reflects an empirical descriptive hermeneutic phenomenological approach to the study of religion focusing on the meaning of symbolic action on how symbols function as vehicles for meaning Geertz gives a guideline which can be used in the interpretation of culture and religion This guideline consists of a concept of culture which is semiotic and textual in character not a private but a public matter and not at all an occult entity which is hardly perceptible but a form of social action which can be thickly described In this introductory text Geertz work on religion will be discussed in the context of the history of the study of religion in general and in relation to rival approaches in the anthropology of religion such as structuralism and cognitive approaches in particular After having dealt with his major intellectual roots and ties we will look at his work on the religion of Java and on Balinese culture and at his contribution to the study of Islamic culture in Morocco Next to an analysis of this ethnographic work on religion we will consider the theoretical and methodological implications of his findings for the comparative study of religion Finally we will evaluate the criticism on and the influences of Geertz work and its significance for future research The Sumarah
