Tonn, 2021-05-16 This book considers the philosophical underpinnings policy foundations institutional innovations and deep cultural changes needed to ensure that humanity has the best chance of surviving and flourishing into the very distant future

Anticipation of threats to the sustainability of human civilization needs to encompass time periods that span not just decades but millennia All existential risks need to be jointly assessed as opposed to addressing risks such as climate change and pandemics separately Exploring the potential events that are likely to cause the biggest risks as well as asking why we should even desire to thrive into the distant future this work looks at the biggest picture possible in order to argue that futures oriented decision making ought to be a permanent aspect of human society and futures oriented policy making must take precedent over the day to day policy making of current generations in times of great peril The book concludes with a discourse on the truly fundamental bottom up changes needed in our personal psychologies and culture to support these top down recommendations This book is of great interest to philosophers policy analysts political scientists economists psychologists planners and theologians
