Systemic Functional Grammar Natural Language Generation Elke Teich:

Systemic Functional Grammar & Natural Language Generation Elke Teich, 1999-04-01 This volume deals with the computational application of systemic functional grammar SFG for natural language generation In particular it describes the implementation of a fragment of the grammar of German in the computational framework of KOMET PENMAN for multilingual generation The text also presents a specification of explicit well formedness constraints on syntagmatic structure which are defined in the form of typed feature structures It thus achieves a model of systemic functional grammar that unites both the strengths of systemics such as stratification functional diversification and the orientation to context and the kind of syntactic generalizations that are typically found in modern syntagmatically focused computational grammars

Language Typology Alice Caffarel, J. R. Martin, Christian M. I. M. Matthiessen, 2004. This book is intended as a systemic functional contribution to language typology both for those who would like to understand and describe particular languages against the background of generalizations about a wide range of languages and also for those who would like to develop typological accounts that are based on and embody descriptions of the systems of particular languages rather than isolated constructions. The book is a unique contribution in at least two respects. On the one hand, it is the first book based on systemic functional theory that is specifically concerned with language typology. On the other hand, the book combines the particular with the general in the description of languages; it presents comparable sketches of particular languages while at the same time identifying generalizations based on the languages described here as well as on other languages. The volume explores eight languages covering seven language families: French, German, Pitjantjatjara, Tagalog, Telugu, Vietnamese, Chinese, and Japanese.
