Improving the Social Security Disability Decision Process Institute of Medicine, Board on Military and Veterans Health, Committee on Improving the Disability Decision Process: SSA's Listing of Impairments and Agency Access to Medical Expertise, 2007-05-14 The Social Security Administration SSA provides Social Security Disability Insurance SSDI benefits to disabled persons of less than full retirement age and to their dependents SSA also provides Supplemental Security Income SSI payments to disabled persons who are under age 65 For both programs disability is defined as a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that prevents an individual from engaging in any substantial gainful activity and is expected to last at least 12 months or result in death Assuming that an applicant meets the nonmedical requirements for eligibility e g quarters of covered employment for SSDI income and asset limits for SSI the file is sent to the Disability Determination Services DDS agency operated by the state in which he or she lives for a determination of medical eligibility SSA reimburses the states for the full costs of the DDSs The DDSs apply a sequential decision process specified by SSA to make an initial decision whether a claim should be allowed or denied If the claim is denied the decision can be appealed through several levels of administrative and judicial review On average the DDSs allow 37 percent of the claims they adjudicate through the five step process A third of those denied decide to appeal and three quarters of the appeals result in allowances Nearly 30 percent of the allowances made each year are made during the appeals process after an initial denial In 2003 the Commissioner of Social Security announced her intent to develop a new approach to disability determination In late 2004 SSA asked the Institute of Medicine IOM to help in two areas related to its initiatives to improve the disability decision process 1 Improvements in the criteria for determining the severity of impairments and 2 Improvements in the use of medical expertise in the disability decision process This interim report provides preliminary recommendations addressing the three tasks that relate to medical expertise issues with a special focus on the appropriate qualifications of medical and psychological experts involved in disability decision making After further information gathering and analyses of the effectiveness of the disability decision process in identifying those who qualify for benefits and those who do not the committee may refine its recommendations concerning medical and psychological expertise in the final report The final report will address a number of issues with potential implications for the qualifications of the medical experts involved in the disability decision process

Disability Decision Making ,2001      Responses to Questionnaire on Citizen Involvement and Responsive Agency Decision-making ... ,1971      Decision making and appeals in the benefits system

Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Work and Pensions Committee, 2010-02-09 In this report the Work and Pensions Committee reiterates its call for the establishment of a Welfare Commission to create a fairer and simpler benefits system that claimants can understand and the Department of Work and Pensions DWP can administer more accurately The report concludes that the vast majority of decisions DWP makes are accepted by claimants and lead to the right benefits being paid on time to those who are eligible But the level of official error in the benefits system has increased substantially since 2000 01 The level of overpayments due to official error has risen from 0 4 billion 0 4 per cent of benefits paid to 0 8 billion 0 6 per cent of benefits paid in 2008 09 Although the Department has made great strides in reducing fraud this increase in error should be a cause for concern The report also highlights a worrying lack of response to scrutiny of the decision making and appeals DMA system by DWP A former President of the Appeal Tribunals Judge Robert Martin felt his reports were effectively ignored and there is evidence that the Decision Making Standards Committee lacks influence There should be a much more constructive response to scrutiny Another area that seems not to be working as effectively or as quickly as it should is the reconsideration process the review of decisions and the Department should examine this urgently

Social Security Administration Disability Determination and Appeals Process United States. Congress. House. Committee on Ways and Means. Subcommittee on Social Security,1991

Decision-making and Disability Living Allowance Northern

Ireland Audit Office,2005-06-16 This report examines how the Social Security Agency Northern Ireland applies the complex rules which affect eligibility for Disability Living Allowance DLA Despite progress since 1998 in reducing the volume of DLA claims held by the Agency and improved accuracy there is still scope for further improvement The speed of decisions has been adversely affected by several factors There should be improvements in the training of frontline staff and further improvements in information technology solutions Fewer cases should be referred to the Agency s Medical Support Services The identification of errors in decision making by the Agency has improved for example through the use of the Periodic Enquiry process There has been a significant increase in the number of appeals by claimants since the decision making procedures were changed in October 1999 Decision makers should make more use of personal communication with claimants to collect initial or follow up evidence and this is especially important as DLA applicants are unlikely to have a detailed grasp of the disability eligibility rules If the Agency aimed for a 10 per cent reduction in DLA Attendance Allowance appeals the saving would be in excess of 190 000 per year

Social Security Law in Context Neville S. Harris,2000

The social security system of Great Britain has reached a crossroads following the election of a Labour Government promising a New Age of welfare and seemingly prepared to think the unthinkable on welfare reform at a time when public expenditure on welfare benefits has reached nearly 100 billion per annum In 1985 the Conservative s Green Paper on social security reform announced that the benefits system had lost its way Attempts were made to curb benefits expenditure and reduce welfare dependency for example through better targeting of needs the reinforcement of personal and family responsibility and tighter administrative controls The ten years from 1988 to 1998 saw the introduction of many new benefit schemes including income support family credit the social fund disability living allowance incapacity benefit and jobseeker s allowance as well as the increasing influence of European Law Yet the system achieves too little according to the new Government s Green Paper on welfare reform which promises a new contract between the citizen and the Government based on responsibilities and rights The precise form these responsibilities and rights will take remains unknown although we already have schemes like the New Deal and proposals for stakeholder pensions Meanwhile social security law continues to impact upon the lives of millions of citizens After ten years of major legislative change and with the prospect of a new direction this is a time to take stock and to analyse the social and legal impact of the past decade s legislation case law and policy as well as considering possible reforms The book s approach is to organise this task thematically particularly with regard to the social context to social security through discrete chapters on for example gender and the family disability housing old age and unemployment It is also opportune to examine the theoretical framework of state welfare and social security particularly in the context of social rights The book aims to provide an authoritative contextual and critical account of how British social security law has evolved how it operates its substance and its social effects
