Investigation of Schedules for Traffic Signal Timing Optimization Byungkyu Park, 2005

Traffic signal optimization is recognized as one of the most cost effective ways to improve urban mobility however the extent of the benefits realized could significantly depend on how often traffic signal re optimization occurs Using a case study from the Northern Virginia Smart Traffic Signal System NVSTSS this project sought to determine how often traffic signals need to be re optimized to provide the greatest benefits This project developed a new traffic signal timing plan evaluation and optimization program by combining the Integrated SYNCHRO and Platoon Dispersion ISAPD model and the OptQuest optimization program Based on 2001 base scenario and 2004 traffic data five scenarios of re optimization time intervals i e 2 weeks 4 weeks 8 weeks 16 weeks and 1 year were investigated Study results indicate that 1 determining time intervals for re optimization in the NVSTSS is feasible 2 among the various re optimization time intervals investigated for the Route 50 case study network the time interval of 1 year was the best for both midday and the PM peak and 3 the annual net savings from implementing this 1 year re optimization time interval could be as high as 107 340 and 254 436 respectively given the assumptions used in the study The report recommends 1 the annual re optimization of the Route 50 corridor traffic signal system 2 the NVSTSS implementation of the combined ISAPS and OptQuest program for measuring regrets of not maintaining the optimal timing plan 3 the adoption by VDOT traffic engineers of the methodology developed in this study which is based on the combined ISAPD and OptQuest program for making decisions regarding traffic signal re optimization and 4 a future study to investigate the impact of traffic volume growth rates and changes in turning movements as a means of assisting with determinations about traffic signal timing plan re optimization

Safety ,1929 The magazine for promoting safer roadways Evaluation of Traffic Signal Timing Optimization Methods Using a Stochastic and Microscopic Simulation Program Byungkyu Park,J. D. Schneeberger,2003 This study evaluated existing traffic signal optimization programs including Synchro TRANSYT 7F and genetic algorithm optimization using real world data collected in Virginia As a first step a microscopic simulation model VISSIM was extensively calibrated and validated using field data Multiple simulation runs were then made for signal timing plans such that drivers behavior day to day traffic variation etc were considered in the evaluation Finally long term demand growth or changes were statistically modeled and evaluated again using multiple simulation runs Five timing plans were evaluated using the simulation test bed The timing plans under evaluation included 1 the former timing plan of the Virginia Department of Transportation VDOT 2 VDOT s current timing plan 3 the genetic algorithm optimized timing plan 4 the Synchro optimized timing plan and 5 the TRANSYT 7F optimized timing plan The simulation study results indicated that the current practice of VDOT s current signal optimization procedure significantly improved upon its former one by reducing travel times by 17% and total system delay by 36% The three optimized timing plans did not provide significant improvements Evaluation of the Lee Jackson Memorial Highway network showed that the current VDOT signal optimization procedure significantly improved the performance of network operations Thus the study recommended that VDOT continue using its procedure for developing new timing plans but that it evaluate its signal timing plan regularly so that it does not become outdated
