

A conceptual image for 'KNOWLEDGE'. The scene is set on a wooden desk. In the background, a dark chalkboard is visible. On the desk, there is a laptop, a desk lamp with a black shade, and a small potted plant. In the foreground, two pairs of hands are visible, belonging to people in business attire. One hand is holding a green pen, and the other is holding a red pen. They are looking at several sheets of paper that contain various charts, including bar charts and pie charts. The word 'KNOWLEDGE' is written in large, bold, white capital letters across the center of the image. The overall lighting is warm and focused on the desk area.

EBOOK: Working Knowledge Colin Symes, John McIntyre, 2002-11-16 a rich inter weaving of carefully articulated critical stances It is impossible in a short review to do justice to the quality and variety of all these perspectives The result is strong coverage of the territory set out in the title in ways that many working in the field will find valuable Phil Hodgkinson Journal of Education for Teaching Universities are undergoing a series of profound changes One of the more pronounced of these involves the partnerships that are now being formed between business enterprises and higher education The emergence of these partnerships has much to do with the changing economy which is increasingly based around knowledge and information the traditional stock in trade of the university Knowledge capitalism has given a renewed impetus to higher education One expression of this is work based learning which challenges the scope and site of the university curriculum This book analyses this development from a number of perspectives critical historical philosophical sociological and pedagogical Its various contributors argue that work based approaches contain much that is challenging to the university and also much that could help to create new frameworks of learning and new roles for academics Working Knowledge offers a comprehensive examination of the new vocationalism in higher education Working Knowledge Thomas H.
