The Death Of Distance How The Communications Revolution Is Changing Our Lives:

The Death of Distance 2.0 Frances Cairncross,2001-01 Never before in human history has technology advanced as quickly as today The biggest changes are taking place in communications and computers which are being combined in new and astonishing ways In this updated and revised addition Frances Cairncross analyzes the impact of this revolution on business government and society

The Death of Distance Frances Cairncross,1997 Examines the ways in which advances in telecommunication will change the way companies do business governments are run and families and friends interact

The Death of Distance Frances Cairncross,2001 The Death of Distance Harvard Business School

Staff,1997-09-01 One of the world s most insightful journalists argues that swiftly unfolding advances in telecommunications will effectively eliminate distance as a perceptible concept from our lives She predicts that this death of distance between individuals the world will work 24 hours a day on three shifts based on the time zones of the Americas Europe the design of the home the strength of local cultures will be enforced while a global culture will develop in parallel dominated by the English language based world on the Internet

We are living in an era of globalisation, yet there is evidence that distance still matters, and increasingly so Arturo Minet,2007-07-10 Essay from the year 2007 in the subject Economics International Economic Relations grade 1 0 University of Warwick University of Warwick UK Dep of Economics course International Economic Systems since 1918 language English abstract The current debate on globalization has raised an important question for economists Is the world really becoming a global village with a weightless economy In accordance with Cairncross s best selling book The Death of Distance 2001 some economists have argued that falling transportation and communication costs are leaving distance a negligible factor in the assessment of barriers to trade and integration of the world economies Yet there is not enough funded evidence for this Recent studies on the importance of education suggest that knowledge as the basic commodity of the 21st century and major source of future growth makes industries and thus trade more independent of traditional physical fetters On the contrary it is not clear to what extent transportation costs have generally declined Moreover it is uncertain whether the decline in shipping costs affects distant and proximate transport equally An emerging literature is trying to give consistent explanations for the puzzling persistence of the distance effect on trade flows and economic development In this essay we will discuss some of the evidence found so far that distance is still alive

Distance Training Desmond Keegan,2003-09-02 Despite the massive potential of distance learning on the internet the field of distance training is little known or understood This guide addresses this knowledge gap and presents research into four models of distance education into which it is claimed nearly all provision world wide falls provides a global overview of distance education and training examines case studies of distance education establishments providing insight into their structure and advantages challenges the premise that distance training lacks academic excellence and status appraises the role of distance education as a tool for employers to provide more effective and efficient training for employees Born in the nineteenth century distance training came of age in the twentieth century Desmond Keegan presents an overview of distance training from its inception and looks forward to the innovations of the future Global Companies, Local Innovations

Yasuyuki Motoyama, 2016-04-22 Investigating the innovation activities of multinational corporations this book uncovers and examines why the geography of innovation by multinationals is overwhelmingly local in spite of their global operations in manufacturing and sales through case studies of product development by three global players Toyota Sony and Canon The microdynamic approach of the book allows an in depth investigation of the engineering and technical aspects of innovation making The book unfolds the complex and constant process of trial and error in innovation and reveals three fundamental natures of innovation making complexity interdisciplinarity and prototyping and testing In order to manage these three natures of innovation firms have to plan ironically for unplanned situations and to collocate knowledge people and resources

The Emergence of ETFs in Asia-Pacific Adam Marszk, Ewa Lechman, Yasuyuki Kato, 2019-03-28 This book is dedicated to examining Exchange Traded Funds ETFs market in the Asia Pacific region between 2004 and 2017 It offers a broad examination of the attributes and development of the ETF markets The book presents a new approach to ETF markets modeling that uses innovation diffusion model In addition it explores the empirical links between ETFs and Information and Communication Technologies ICTs The book also compares ETFs and competing investment options This book should appeal to both academics and practitioners as it includes detailed descriptions of the ETF markets and prepared projections regarding their future development As the Asia Pacific region plays a significant role in the global economy this book should be useful for international readers beyond this area The Emergence of ETFs in Asia Pacific begins with an overview of the Asia Pacific economies focusing on their importance for the global economy and their features Next the book introduces an analytical framework It explains major features of ETFs such as their creation distribution and trading and key categories which facilitates profound understanding of the book merit even for readers with little knowledge about ETFs The following chapter explores the role of ICTs in economy and society identifying channels of their impact on financial markets It discusses how ICTs foster dynamic spread of financial innovations including ETFs across financial markets Next the book examines the ETF market's development in different countries in the Asia Pacific region by analyzing their level of development in terms of turnover In this part it also provides brief characteristics of all markets including their structures and categories of ETFs in various countries Consecutive part of the book is dedicated to reports on the process of ICTs growing penetration across Asia Pacific countries showing the changes observed during recent years It then continues the empirical analysis of the ETF markets in the Asia Pacific region by attempting to trace the links between the development of ETF markets and ICT penetration during the period 2004 2017 As complementary material a methodological annex is included showing major analytical techniques used throughout the research Transnational Distance Learning and Building New Markets for Universities Hogan, Robert, 2012-02-29 When online learning began more than two decades ago

many universities envisioned the creation of international student markets but this has only recently become a reality The emergence of a global economy advances in technology increased market competition reduced funding and the growing desire for degrees from internationally recognized universities have created opportunities that promote transnational degrees Transnational Distance Learning and Building New Markets for Universities presents the opportunities methods issues and risks involved in extending university education across national borders It is important to understand cultural financial and legal issues as well as management approaches academic delivery options and business considerations needed to create quality programs that are marketable and cost effective in reaching emerging international markets The purpose of the book is to review how to reach emerging international markets increase access to education and do so at a profit

Death of Distance Or Tyranny of Distance? Ann Capling, Kim Richard Nossal, 2000 Abstract Much of the analysis of the anti globalisation movement has focused on the degree to which the Internet has played a crucial role in contemporary social movements It is commonly argued that the net helps create virtual communities that use the medium to exchange information co ordinate activities and build and extend political support Much of the commentary on the web as a means of political mobilisation stresses the degree to which the net compresses both space and time Equally important in this view is the deterritorialised nature of on line protest and diminution in importance of place in current anti globalisation campaigns Our examination of the antiglobalisation movement in Australia leads us to a different conclusion While the Internet does indeed compress time it compresses space in a different and indeed quite variable way This paper examines the way in which Australians protested against the MAI and the WTO meetings in Seattle and shows the differences in the nature of protest in each case We conclude that crucial to an understanding of the differences was the considerable difference in the importance of place in each case
