Trigeminocardiac Reflex:

Trigeminocardiac Reflex Tumul Chowdhury, Bernhard J. Schaller, 2015-05-29 Trigeminocardiac Reflex is a comprehensive tutorial reference to the science diagnosis and possible treatment of the trigeminocardiac reflex TCR that is usually initiated when the trigeminal nerve is disturbed during intercranial surgery Since first reported in 1999 by co Editor Bernhard Schaller the research focused on TCR is expanding While its instance is rare new discoveries are not only increasing diagnosis but also providing more effective treatment protocols This text is ideal as a reference for clinical and research neurologists as a general introduction for clinical presentation and as a foundation for new research Represents the first tutorial reference focused on the Trigeminocardiac Reflex TCR Content organized by two of the leading scientists in the area Dr Tumul Chowdhury University of Manitoba and Prof Bernhard Schaller University of Southampton Defines TCR its onset and possible treatments Establishes a knowledge base for the future study of the TCR and treatment protocols The Trigemino-Cardiac Reflex: Beyond the Diving Reflex Bernhard Schaller, Tumul Chowdhury, 2018-01-16 The trigemino cardiac reflex TCR is a well established brain stem reflex and commonly manifests as bradycardia asystole hypotension and or apnea This phenomenon was extensively explored in the recent past However the area related to its exact bio physiological mechanism neuro anatomical linkages clinical implications its role in non neurological events and future directions should need to be further investigated Therefore this present research topic on TCR would mainly focus on various aspects of TCR and present a comprehensive and exhaustive overview about a phenomena that gains more and more interest during the last few years Our goal is to present models about the different aspects of the TCR to develop in depth understanding of TCR

The Trigeminocardiac Reflex - An Example of Reflexive Heart Rhythm Change Tumul Chowdhury, 2015 The trigeminocardiac reflex TCR is defined as the sudden onset of parasympathetic dysrhythmia sympathetic hypotension apnoea or gastric hyper motility during mechanical thermal stimulation of any of the sensory branches of the trigeminal nerve The risk factors that are already known for increasing the prevalence of the TCR include anatomical location hypercapnia hypoxemia light general anaesthesia age more pronounced in children the nature of the provoking stimulus stimulus strength and duration and different drugs Already different potential confounders are also identified This discussion about risk factors has its importance because of the substantial consequences for functional outcome after intraoperative TCR occurrence But there remains still a substantial lack of thorough understanding of the TCR the current treatment options for patients with TCR include a mostly empirical approach i risk factor identification and modification ii prophylactic measures of vital signs and iii administration of vagolytic agents or sympathomimetics In this context we have now created different thinking models so that we can preoperatively plan a skull base surgery procedure safely in relation to a potential occurrence of the TCR episodes This chapter provides an overview of this unique reflex that presents a unique interaction between heart and brain In addition this also illustrates the mechanism of various cardiac rhythm changes related to the TCR Rhinology and

Trigeminocardiac Reflex in Open Reduction for TMJ Dislocation Yeojung Kim, 2017

U2022 Background Trigeminocardiac reflex occurs after manipulation around any branches of the trigeminal nerve Oculocardiac reflex has frequently been reported However there have been only rare reports of such cases attributed to stimulation of division III We report a case of trigeminocardiac reflex in open reduction for TMJ dislocation

u2022 Case report A 74 year old female presented for TMJ dislocation Manual reduction was failed because of severe lateral pterygoid muscle contracture Open reduction under general anesthesia was decided During surgical manipulation of right mandibular angle severe bradycardia HR 20bpm occurred Immediately 0.5 mg atropine was administered intravenously and the surgical manipulation was stopped After 60 seconds heart rate normalized Then during surgery severe bradycardia occurred one more time It disappeared spontaneously as soon as surgical manipulation was stopped The surgery was completed uneventfully

u2022 Discussion Trigeminocardiac reflex due to stimulation of division III is very rare However given the possibility of profound bradycardia asystole or even death when evoked it is important to be aware of the trigeminocardiac reflex during surgical stimulation of the mandibular divisions of the trigeminal nerve in particular surgical stimulation of TMJ
