

APA Style Guide (6th Edition)

The following are examples and explanations that follow the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association Sixth Edition. This handout is intended as a guide. If you have specific questions, always check with your instructor. Note: Examples in this handout may be single-spaced to conserve paper. ALWAYS double-space between ALL lines.

IN-TEXT CITATION

In addition to providing a reference list at the end of your paper, you must also cite your sources within your paper by using in-text citations. You must cite direct quotes, paraphrases, or summaries of someone else's words, as well as facts, figures, and ideas that are someone else's words. This allows your audience to see where the information is coming from, while also giving credit to the original source. Note: Sentence punctuation occurs after in-text citations. See examples below.

1. Single author

If the name of the author appears in a signal phrase in the sentence, cite only the year of the publication in parentheses following the author's name.	Cartwright (2010) suggested that paying strict and narrow focus to a problem may not be the best way to solve it.
While it is not required, it is encouraged to also provide the page number for a paraphrase citation, to help your reader find the passage in the text.	Cartwright (2010) noted that most adults need between seven to nine hours of sleep per night on average (p. 36).
If you do not introduce the author's name in the sentence, place both his/her name and the year, separated by a comma, in parentheses.	Most adults need between seven to nine hours of sleep per night on average (Cartwright, 2010, p. 36).
All citations in parentheses should include the year, regardless of how often they appear in a paragraph.	Most adults need between seven to nine hours of sleep per night on average (Cartwright, 2010). A good indicator of how much sleep is necessary is to look at unscheduled sleep (Cartwright, 2010).
Within the same paragraph, if the name of the author is outside of the parenthesis, after the first citation, you do not need to include the year in additional references to the author's work, as long as the work cannot be confused with other citations.	Cartwright (2010) noted that most adults need between seven to nine hours of sleep per night on average. Cartwright pointed out that unscheduled sleep is a good indicator of how much sleep is necessary.
Material directly quoted from the author must be enclosed in quotation marks. Give the author's last name, date of publication, and page number (page number is required for quotations).	Cartwright (2010) observed that "the use of stay-awake medicine is strongly related to shift work" (p. 37). It is observed that "the use of stay-awake medicine is strongly related to shift work" (Cartwright, 2010, p. 37).
