Brett, 2012-04-15 The Sisters of the Holy Family founded in New Orleans in 1842 were the first African American Catholics to serve as missionaries This story of their little known missionary efforts in Belize from 1898 to 2008 builds upon their already distinguished work through the Archdiocese of New Orleans of teaching slaves and free people of color caring for orphans and the elderly and tending to the poor and needy Utilizing previously unpublished archival documents along with extensive personal correspondence and interviews Edward T Brett has produced a fascinating account of the 110 year mission of the Sisters of the Holy Family to the Garifuna people of Belize Brett discusses the foundation and growth of the struggling order in New Orleans up to the sisters decision in 1898 to accept a teaching commitment in the Stann Creek District of what was then British Honduras The early history of the British Honduras mission concentrates especially on Mother Austin Jones the superior responsible for expanding the order s work into the mission field In examining the Belizean mission from the eve of the Second Vatican Council through the post Vatican II years Brett sensitively chronicles the sisters efforts to conform to the spirit of the council and describes the creative innovations that the Holy Family community introduced into the Belizean educational system In the final chapter he looks at the congregation s efforts to sustain its missionary work in the face of the shortage of new religious vocations Brett s study is more than just a chronicle of the Holy Family Sisters accomplishments in Belize He treats the issues of racism and gender discrimination that the African American congregation encountered both within the church and in society demonstrating how the sisters survived and even thrived by learning how to skillfully negotiate with the white dominant power structure

Delicate Dances Queen's University (Kingston, Ont.). School of Policy Studies, 2003 The authors look at the relationships in different provincial settings focusing on Ontario Quebec and Saskatchewan examining the defining influence of government welfare programs on the lives of two local religious orders in Atlantic Canada The authors argue that both the public and the nonprofit sectors are changing In the public sector the traditional dominance of central governments has given way to a governance system that interweaves action at the global national regional and local levels In the nonprofit sector groups are assuming new organizational forms and engaging in public policy more centrally both as advocates and service providers Not surprisingly relations between these two sectors involve a complex series of delicate dances in which missteps by either partner can produce tangled confusion Contributors include Donald Abelson University of Western Ontario Kathy Brock Queens University Ian Brodie University of Western Ontario Ann Capling Melbourne University Miriam Lapp University of Western Ontario Georges leBel UQAM Heidi Macdonald University of Lethbridge David Malloy University of Regina Kim Nossal Queens University Susan Phillips Carleton University Ken Rasmussen University of Regina Paul Pross Dalhousie University Peter Smith Athabaska University Elizabeth Smythe Concordia University College of Alberta Kernaghan Webb Carleton University and Mary Wiktorowicz York University      The Presence of God: The flowering of mysticism Bernard McGinn, 1998
