

Where a role requires access to specific business systems that contain sensitive personal or financial information, individuals may be required to sign a data protection declaration before they are sanctioned to carry out these duties.

Line managers will make staff aware if they are required to do this and line managers will oversee the process within their School or department.

4. Mobile and Remote Computing

4.1. Authorisation

Those remotely accessing information systems, data or services containing sensitive or confidential information must be authorised to do so by an appropriate authority, usually the line manager.

4.2. Use of computing equipment off-campus

Irrespective of ownership, computers or other devices should only be used off-campus for University related activities if adequate security controls are in place. Where sensitive or confidential information is being stored or accessed from off-campus, an approved access solution, such as via UniDesktop, should be used as data then remains within University systems.

Where staff owned computers are used sensitive or confidential information must not be stored on the device unless approved by the University. The member of staff concerned should take steps to ensure other users of the equipment cannot view or access University information. Staff are responsible for ensuring all devices adhere to the highest levels of security as defined in the Using Your Own Device (UYOD) Policy. As per the UYOD Policy, University staff must not use OneDrive client on personally owned devices to access University accounts as this systematically synchronises all University data to that device, instead, documents residing in OneDrive should be accessed only via a browser.

Any loss or theft of University equipment or personal equipment which has been used to access sensitive University data must be reported at the earliest opportunity.

Multifactor authentication (MFA) will be enforced on access to University systems when being used from off-campus. This validates the account holder and reduces the risks relating to weak, shared or compromised passwords.

Public Wi-Fi connections, such as those in hotels and coffee shops, may not be secure and should be avoided. It is trivial for someone to set up a fake Wi-Fi access point with a trusted name to encourage connections which they can then use to view your internet traffic or gain access to your device. Verify the Wi-Fi network with the venue before connecting. If you are unsure of the security of any wired or wireless network, then you should not use it.

4.3. Travelling

Portable computing or storage devices are vulnerable to theft, loss or unauthorised access when travelling and information stored on them should be kept to a minimum. Approved mobile device management software must be installed and activated on University owned mobile and portable devices at all times. All devices, including portable storage, must be provided with an appropriate form of access protection
