Scaling around 100

WorkKeys tests generally attempt to be scaled to a mean of 100 with a plus or minus percentage error of ± 10%. This means scores from these tests are in the Level 2 range, which profile is composed of scores ranging of 90 percentile points. The performance range, from Level 1 scores through Level 3 scores, has 100% error, plus or minus 10% individual high-ability participants must score between the WorkKeys profiles. This percentage error applies to Level 2 participants in the range of 100 scale scores. Furthermore, other Level 3 scores, associated by scaling, have greater variability than scores from equivalent tests.

Scaling and WorkKeys Scores

Scaling Scores:
Scaling raw test scores, percentages, and averages are scaled.
Scaling indicates performance differences between individuals, which is not the goal of scaling. Scores are not scaled to reflect knowledge or skill.

Scaling Scales

Scaling for educational tests is a process of transforming the standardized content of the test, through the conversion of raw test scores into scaled scores. Scaled scores are the result of the scaling process and are used to compare test scores across different tests.

Assessment in Counseling Albert Bullard Hood, Richard W. Johnson, 2007 This best selling handbook examines the basic principles of psychological assessment and the tests most widely used by counselors. Hood and Johnson explain how to choose and administer testing instruments, conduct assessments, and interpret and communicate test results. More than 100 instruments used with diverse populations in schools, university counseling centers, government mental health clinics, and private practice to assess intelligence, academic aptitude, career development, personal values, interpersonal relationships, mental health, and counseling outcomes are described. This edition contains information on the latest editions of existing instruments, including revised versions of the Stanford Binet test, the Strong Interest Inventory, the Work Values Inventory, the California Psychological Inventory, and the SAT, as well as changes in school achievement tests required by the No Child Left Behind Act. New tests such as the Kuder Skills Assessment, Expanded Skills Confidence Inventory, Career Futures Inventory, the Schwartz Value Survey, and the Restructured Clinical Scales of the MMPI 2 are also highlighted. Clear and concise, Assessment in Counseling provides an excellent framework for assessment courses and is a handy reference for practitioners.

Testing and Assessment in Vocational Education, 1994 This background paper provides a picture of general progress in vocational education assessment instruments and policies. Chapter 1 explains the paper's purposes and presents a summary of its contents. Chapter 2 traces the evolution of federal accountability requirements in vocational education law and explains the intent of the 1990 provisions. Chapter 3 profiles current state testing and assessment policies in vocational education. It analyzes how state assessment policies and practices are changing in response to Perkins Act requirements and considers how these changes could affect both other reforms in vocational education and the nature of learning and instruction in vocational education itself. Chapter 4 describes some testing and assessment resources available to measure various kinds of occupational skills, including tests developed by three main vendors. Chapter 5 explores alternative approaches for defining, teaching, and measuring broad technical skills and highlights issues that should be considered in moving toward assessments that meet needs identified by Congress. Chapter 6 describes how the U.S. Department of Education has implemented performance standards. One appendix lists legislative milestones related to accountability in federal vocational education programs. Another appendix explains acronyms. YLB Resources in Education, 1997
