2.2.1 Transmission and clutch system

The transmission is based on a double clutch design. The torque and reduced weight design allows a greater range than before, lower gear ratios and therefore a higher degree of efficiency.

2.2.1.1 Description of the transmission

The F16/F16TRONIC transmission is a six-speed unit with the following features: a different speed selector for the standard transmission, a different selector for the 20 and 20TRONIC modules and an option group (20) and a transmission range change group (20) in a planetary design.

The 6+1 speed transmission system is produced with a planetary transmission system in the 6+1 and transmission module. The option group range change group (20) is a planetary design.
