Module 1: Early Childhood

Module 1: Early Childhood: This module will examine the primary stages of development in the first 6 years of life.

Developmental Domains

- Physical Growth: The first 6 years of life are marked by dramatic physical growth. At birth, an infant weighs approximately 7 pounds. By the time they are 6 years old, they weigh approximately 40 pounds. This growth is primarily due to the rapid increase in muscle mass and the corresponding increase in bone density. The growth during this period is also influenced by the rapid development of the nervous system, which is responsible for the coordination of physical movement.
- Cognitive Growth: During this time, new brain regions are activated, which leads to increased cognitive development. The brain grows from approximately 400 grams at birth to about 1,200 grams by age 6. This growth is primarily due to the development of the prefrontal cortex, which is responsible for higher-order thinking and problem-solving.
- Social and Emotional Growth: During this time, children begin to form relationships with others, which leads to the development of social and emotional skills. These skills include the ability to share, take turns, and cooperate with others. This growth is primarily due to the development of the amygdala, which is responsible for emotional regulation and social bonding.
- Language Development: During this time, children begin to learn language, which is a critical component of communication. This growth is primarily due to the development of the brain regions involved in language processing, such as the Wernicke's area and the Broca's area.

Developmental Theories

- Show the differences and contrast the following theories in terms of how they explain the following concepts:
  - Attachment: Explain how attachment theory corresponds to the concept of "strange situation".
  - Genes: Explain how genetic inheritance can contribute to the development of certain traits.
  - Environment: Explain how the environment can contribute to the development of certain traits.
  - Developmental Stages: Explain how the concept of "stages" corresponds to the concept of "continuity".
  - Learning: Explain how the concept of "learning" corresponds to the concept of "maturation".
