

THE SCHENGEN AREA

- The Schengen acquis applies to members of the European institutions of the following 26 member States: Belgium, Czech Republic, Germany, Estonia, Greece, Spain (including the Balearic Islands and the Canary Islands), France, Croatia, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Hungary, Malta, The Netherlands, Austria, Ireland, Portugal (including Madeira and the Azores), Slovenia, Slovakia, Finland and Sweden.
- Denmark is an EU Member State that has a special position with regard to the application of the Schengen acquis. It has to implement the entire Schengen acquis, not as to law but as an obligation under international law. In a consequence, Denmark does not introduce Schengen measures as adopted by the EU.
- Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway, Iceland and Switzerland, which are not EU member States, are associated with the implementation of the Schengen acquis through association agreements. They have the right to be present and make suggestions during the preparation of Schengen acquis acts that are subsequently adopted by the EU institutions. They have to implement all Schengen acts other than adoption by the EU institutions and only the Council accordingly.
- Bulgaria, Romania and Cyprus are EU member States bound by the entire Schengen acquis. However, they do not yet apply the parts of the acquis that concern the exercise of controls at internal borders, including visas. Bulgaria and Romania are also connected to the Schengen information system (SIS) since 10 July 2013. The control at the external borders with these Member States can be lifted only as a result of a decision adopted by the Council.
- Ireland is an EU Member State which does not participate in the Schengen cooperation. However, it may request and be authorised to take part in some parts of the Schengen acquis concerning police and judicial cooperation in criminal matters. Today, Ireland practically applies the areas of the Schengen acquis in which it has asked to participate, including the Schengen information system related to police.

Members of northern Baltic and Nordic, the Faroe Islands, and Greenland are subject to specific rules.
The United Kingdom, Monaco, San Marino and Vatican City are subject to specific control arrangements under national or international law.

Migration and the Externalities of European Integration Sandra Lavenex, Emek M. Uçarer, 2002-06-03 Migration and the Externalities of European Integration analyzes the extra European dimension of the European Union's migration policies and the mechanisms developed to enforce the EU's policy decisions. While previous scholarship has tended to overlook the consequences of Europeanization on actors outside the EU, this work scrutinizes the foreign policy dimension in EU migration policies and highlights the Union's complex role as an international actor. Written by scholars of migration policy, the essays discuss the impact of EU asylum and refugee policy on Norway, Switzerland, Eastern Europe, and the Euro-Mediterranean region, and the effect of migration on European immigration controls and welfare policy. This comprehensive treatment of transnational migration will be a valuable resource for students of international affairs, European integration, and international organization.

2004, 2004 This report emphasises the development of human capital to respond to future labour market needs in APEC and contributes to collective understanding of the synergies between human capital and innovation in fuelling growth performance. In the paper International Mobility of Highly Qualified People in APEC the study argues that highly qualified people (HQP) are indispensable to an innovative economy. A more innovative economy requires that the labour force include the right number and types of HQPs. However, for some segments of HQPs the job market is now international, with the industrialized economies in APEC competing to attract individuals with the most in-demand skills and experience. This means that if APEC economies are to adjust to new skill requirements in order to support a more innovative economy, they must formulate policies to retain domestic talent and attract HQPs from abroad. On the other hand, the mobility of HQPs is a necessary condition for knowledge dissemination and absorption in the new global economy.

The second paper The Development of Industrial Clusters Towards a Knowledge-based Economy, drawing on the empirical evidence from the Hsinchu Science-based Industrial Park (HSIP), finds that human resources are indispensable to the build-up of innovation capability. As an economy develops, it may even attract skilled labor from overseas. However, human resources that are repatriated or attracted from abroad are always insufficient to support the operations of an industrial cluster, and they have to be complemented by indigenous skills.
