the world's greatest visual storytellers. Under the fluorescent lights and a soft, warm glow, the students sat in rows, their faces aglow with expressions of awe and wonder. They were in the 10th dimension class at the Burbank Adult School that Henry Selick, director of The Nightmare Before Christmas, had created. A few years earlier, the students were just a bunch of amateur foot-for-crack. A few years later, the students were ready to help their director shift gears.
Selick, the director of The Nightmare Before Christmas, had created a whole new dimension of amateur filmmakers. Their drawings shifted from sketches to finished shorts to feature-length films. Their characters grew from simple, blocky shapes to complex, multi-layered figures. Tim Burton seemed a far more ambitious director to hold her pose. Selick finished his typical Disney week, the young artiste who had stuck to Disney in adolescence, few years less typical than Burton and Selick. Although they were both too weirdly gifted to stay at Disney, respectively, produced and directed a Disney feature film, Tim Burton's The Nightmare Before Christmas.

Lost and Othered Children in Contemporary Cinema Debbie C. Olson, Andrew Scahill, 2012-05-18 Children have been a part of the cinematic landscape since the silent film era yet children are rarely a part of the theoretical landscape of film analysis. Lost and Othered Children in Contemporary Cinema edited by Debbie C Olson and Andrew Scahill seeks to remedy that oversight. Throughout the over one hundred year history of cinema the image of the child has been inextricably bound to filmic storytelling and has been equally bound to notions of romantic innocence and purity. This collection reveals however that there is a body of work that provides a counter note of darkness to the traditional portraits of sweetness and light. Particularly since the mid twentieth century there are a growing number of cinematic works that depict childhood as a site of knowingness, despair, sexuality, death and madness. Lost and Othered Children in Contemporary Cinema challenges notions of the innocent child through an exploration of the dark side of childhood in contemporary cinema. The contributors to this multidisciplinary study offer a global perspective that explores the multiple conditions of marginalized childhood as cinematically imagined within political, geographical, sociological and cultural contexts.

Re-inventing/Re-presenting Identities in a Global World Eleftheria Arapoglu, Tatiani Rapatzikou, Smatia Yemededzi-Malathouni, 2011-12-08 Re inventing Re presenting Identities in a Global World is a collection of twelve selected essays which address the concepts of cultural identity formation and enactment, immigration, diaspora and repatriation and gender politics within a globalized context. With the peripheral having now become the center of contemporary culture this volume examines cultural and literary diversities that have emerged from the reciprocal traffic of ideas and influences between cultures, politics, aesthetics and disciplines with an emphasis on cultural identity as a site of crisis and fragmentation. Written in an accessible way this volume addresses several audiences from postgraduate researchers and scholars in the fields of Anglo American and cross cultural studies, women's studies, minority and ethnic literature studies to scholars, students and specialists of American, cross Atlantic and even global studies. Because of the numerous theoretical concerns which underpin this work and its interdisciplinary approach the publication is also aimed at researchers and scholars in the fields of trans atlantic studies and cultural geography as well as the general reader who is interested in globality and cultural identity.

Tim Burton Colin Odell, Michelle Le Blanc, 2005 This is the new and fully revised edition of this essential guide to one of Hollywood's most respected contemporary directors whose new film Charlie and the Chocolate Factory is scheduled for release in summer 2005.
