Welding With Children Stories:

Welding with Children Tim Gautreaux, 2009-01-06 A master storyteller's triumphant moving short fiction collection about lost souls found love and rediscovered tradition. Gautreaux's offbeat characters and infectious storyteller's tone put you in mind of Eudora Welty in a John Deere cap or maybe Flannery O'Connor before she got religion. Whatever direction this greatly talented writer turns to next you'll want to follow him every step of the way. Kirkus Reviews Tim Gautreaux returns to the form that won him his first fans with tales of family sin and redemption from a man who realizes his grandchildren are growing up without any sense of right or wrong and he's to blame to a camera repairman who uncovers a young woman's secret in the undeveloped film she brings him to a one armed hitch hiker who changes the life of the man who gives her a ride. Each one a small miracle of storytelling and compassion these stories in Welding with Children are a joyous confirmation of Tim Gautreaux's rare and generous talent. Insightful and delightful stories from the heart of Cajun country. Gautreaux has mastered the illusion of letting a story flow in such a natural way that it seems to tell itself. His economy of language is truly impressive as he creates realistic multifaceted characters and complex situations in the space of a few pages. Highly recommended. Library Journal. Move Garrison Keilor's Lake Wobegon stories to Louisiana add heat and Tabasco and the result would be Welding With Children. The Atlanta Journal Constitution. Gautreaux has perfect pitch it's his fiction's coarse incongruities epitomized by the book's title that prove the limitless possibilities of limited geography. The New York Times Book Review

The Story of Narrative Preaching Mike Graves, 2015-03-02 Forty years ago the one thing that could be said about sermons was they were biblical. Unfortunately they were sometimes tedious too. Narrative preaching aimed to fix that, advocating for a dynamic experience of the text over against a static lecture. Preaching could be like the parables of Jesus, intriguing and compelling. The Story of Narrative Preaching is the story of seven students who are enrolled in Professor Freeman's preaching course. Once a new trend, narrative preaching is now older than most of them. As Professor Freeman notes, two things went wrong with narrative styles over time: the church became biblically and theologically illiterate and the promised stress on experience didn't always measure up to the weight of the gospel. Readers are invited to sit in on the class to reflect on the expositional nature of preaching and to experience the stories of some modern storytellers: Flannery O'Connor, Alice Walker and others to see what they might teach us about narratives of depth. In the end we discover what may be the most important word in preaching

Conversations with Tim Gautreaux L. Lamar Nisly, 2012-07-27 Louisiana writer Tim Gautreaux b. 1947 writes fiction that mixes equal parts dry humor, tall tales and deep tragedy. His stories and novels of working class Acadiana portray lives of inimitably poignant love, loss and longing. The depth and complexity of Gautreaux's writing invite scholarly appraisals as well as critics mine the richness of his moral vision. These interviews reveal the intensity of his sense of place, his deep connection to the mechanical and working world, his commitment to the craft of writing and his Catholic view that has been shaped by Flannery O'Connor and Walker Percy. Conversations with Tim
