Symbolic And Structural Archaeology

Symbolic and Structural Archaeology Ian Hodder, 1982 This volume presents a searching critique of the more traditional archaeological methodologies and interpretation strategies and lays down a firm philosophical and theoretical basis for symbolist and structuralist studies in archaeology A variety of procedures ranging from ethnoarchaeological studies and computing techniques to formal studies of artefact design variability are utilized to provide models for archaeologists within the proposed framework and the theory and models are then applied to a range of archaeological analyses This particular approach sees all human actions as being meaningfully constituted within a social and cultural framework Material culture is not simply an adaptive tool but is structured according to sets of underlying principles which give meaning to and derive meanings from the social world Thus structural regularities are shown to link seemingly disparate aspects of material culture from funerary monuments to artefact design from the use of space in settlements to the form of economic practices

The Archaeology of Contextual Meanings Ian Hodder, 1987-08-06 This companion volume to Archaeology as Long term History focuses on the symbolism of artefacts It seeks at once to refine the theory and method relating to interpretation and show with examples how to conduct this sort of archaeological work Some contributors work with the material culture of modern times or the historic period areas in which the symbolism of mute artefacts has traditionally been thought most accessible However the book also contains a good number of applications in prehistory to demonstrate the feasibility of symbolic interpretation where good contextual data survive from the distant past In relation to wider debates within the social sciences the volume is characterised by a concern to place abstract symbolic codes within their historical context and within the contexts of social actions In this respect it develops further some of the ideas presented in Dr Hodder's Symbolic and Structural Archaeology an earlier volume in this series

Theory and Practice in Archaeology Ian Hodder, 2004-08-02 In this latest collection of his articles of which seven are written especially for this volume Ian Hodder captures and continues the lively controversy of the 1980s over symbolic and structural approaches to archaeology The book acts as an overview of the developments in the discipline over the last decade yet Hodder's brief is far wider His aim is to break down the division between the intellectual and the dirt archaeologist to demonstrate that in this discipline more than any other theory must be related to practice to save effectively our rapidly diminishing heritage

Reader in Archaeological Theory David S. Whitley, 1998 This Reader in Archaeological Theory presents sixteen articles of key theoretical significance in a format which makes this notoriously complex area easier for students to understand This volume provides an intellectual history of different approaches to archaeology which contextualizes the complex traditions of cognitive archaeology and postprocessualism on which it focuses organizes theories of archaeology the meanings of things the prehistoric mind and cognition gender ideology and social theory and archaeology's relationship to today's society and politics includes lucid section introductions to each section which provide context explain why the papers are so significant and summarize their key points emphasizes research from the New World making archaeological theory especially relevant and accessible to students in North America Archaeological Method and Theory Linda Ellis,2003-12-16 This Encyclopedia brings together the most recent scientific information on a collection of subjects that are too often and inconveniently treated in separate publications It provides a survey of archaeological method and theory as well as the application of physical and biological sciences in archaeological research Every aspect of archaeological work is represented from the discovery process to the ultimate disposition of materials Thus the reader will find entries on subject matter covering disciplinary theory legislation affecting the work of archaeologists pre excavation surveying excavation methodology on site conservation techniques post excavation analysis The rapid evolution of analytical technology is often superficially treated or not covered at all in textbooks or other commonly available sources Here the latest refinements in techniques such as radiometric dating stable isotopic analysis and the PCR technique of DNA analysis are presented clearly and authoritatively The discussion of these techniques is amplified by including results of the work of professionals conducting interdisciplinary research and by covering the methodologi enhancements provided by the physical and natural sciences Cultural property legislation regardless of its country of origin has affected how archaeologists conduct their work This encyclopedia covers all major U S legislation developed for the protection of cultural property including the recent Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act and offers a substantial article on worldwide legislation concerning the reburial of human remains and its effects on the present and future practice of archaeology Without some sort of conservation program at the point of excavation valuable materials may be inadvertently contaminated or destroyed Many simple and low cost techniques to promote both sample integrity and long term preservation for major classes of materials are described in this volume Traditional treatments of method and theory usually focus on prehistoric periods and are limited in their geographic range This volume includes discussions based on various historical periods on different continents as reflected in entries such as Historical Archaeology Industrial Archaeology Medieval Archaeology and Classical Archaeology Material Culture Victor Buchli,2004 Publisher description What's New? Sander E. van der Leeuw,Robin Torrence,2025-10-01 First published in 1989 What s New puts innovation firmly back on the agenda of archaeological interpretation This book revives interest in the process of innovation and reinterprets it by drawing on original work done in a variety of disciplines It demonstrates that the study of the components of innovation invention acceptance and the context in which they occur is essential if social change is to be better understood The book contains detailed case studies that cover a broad geographical range in the prehistoric historic and modern world It simulates and analyses the conditions of innovation and provides the necessary theoretical framework The technologies involved are diverse herding fishing pottery making metalworking and land management Several important issues emerge from this diversity it is the context of innovation that determines whether change will take place within hierarchical societies ideology can both stimulate and deny innovation and the potential for innovation experimentation and change in traditional societies is systematically underrated by the Western world which is dominated by a narrow technological perspective. The contributors also study innovation in social and applied anthropology, industrial planning and the natural sciences. What's New will provoke renewed discussion throughout the archaeological community about the process of innovation. Anthropologists, human geographers and other social scientists will find it fascinating because it provides a time dimension for the study of the conditions of human and social change.
