Systems Thinking Systems Practice Includes A 30 Year Retrospective:

Systems Thinking, Systems Practice Peter Checkland, 1999-09-28 Systems Thinking Systems Practice Whether by design accident or merely synchronicity Checkland appears to have developed a habit of writing seminal publications near the start of each decade which establish the basis and framework for systems methodology research for that decade Hamish Rennie Journal of the Operational Research Society 1992 Thirty years ago Peter Checkland set out to test whether the Systems Engineering SE approach highly successful in technical problems could be used by managers coping with the unfolding complexities of organizational life The straightforward transfer of SE to the broader situations of management was not possible but by insisting on a combination of systems thinking strongly linked to real world practice Checkland and his collaborators developed an alternative approach Soft Systems Methodology SSM which enables managers of all kinds and at any level to deal with the subtleties and confusions of the situations they face This work established the now accepted distinction between hard systems thinking in which parts of the world are taken to be systems which can be engineered and soft systems thinking in which the focus is on making sure the process of inquiry into real world complexity is itself a system for learning Systems Thinking Systems Practice 1981 and Soft Systems Methodology in Action 1990 together with an earlier paper Towards a Systems based Methodology for Real World Problem Solving 1972 have long been recognized as classics in the field Now Peter Checkland has looked back over the three decades of SSM development brought the account of it up to date and reflected on the whole evolutionary process which has produced a mature SSM SSM A 30 Year Retrospective here included with Systems Thinking Systems Practice closes a chapter on what is undoubtedly the most significant single research programme on the use of systems ideas in problem solving Now retired from full time university work Peter Checkland continues his research as a Leverhulme Emeritus Fellow

Systems Thinking, Systems Practice Peter Checkland, 1981-06-10 Systems Thinking Systems Practice Whether by design accident or merely synchronicity Checkland appears to have developed a habit of writing seminal publications near the start of each decade which establish the basis and framework for systems methodology research for that decade Hamish Rennie Journal of the Operational Research Society 1992 Thirty years ago Peter Checkland set out to test whether the Systems Engineering SE approach highly successful in technical problems could be used by managers coping with the unfolding complexities of organizational life The straightforward transfer of SE to the broader situations of management was not possible but by insisting on a combination of systems thinking strongly linked to real world practice Checkland and his collaborators developed an alternative approach Soft Systems Methodology SSM which enables managers of all kinds and at any level to deal with the subtleties and confusions of the situations they face This work established the now accepted distinction between hard systems thinking in which parts of the world are taken to be systems which can be engineered and soft systems thinking in which the focus is on making sure the process of inquiry into real world complexity is itself a system for learning Systems Thinking Systems

Practice 1981 and Soft Systems Methodology in Action 1990 together with an earlier paper Towards a Systems based Methodology for Real World Problem Solving 1972 have long been recognized as classics in the field Now Peter Checkland has looked back over the three decades of SSM development brought the account of it up to date and reflected on the whole evolutionary process which has produced a mature SSM SSM A 30 Year Retrospective here included with Systems Thinking Systems Practice closes a chapter on what is undoubtedly the most significant single research programme on the use of systems ideas in problem solving Now retired from full time university work Peter Checkland continues his research as a Leverhulme Emeritus Fellow

Koskinen, 2010-10-14 All companies draw on resources outside the business and have to compete with other enterprises to attract these resources Standard texts on management and organization argue that the best way to get ahead in business is by getting a firm grasp of this external environment by representing it internally Kaj Koskinen claims that this is the wrong approach He argues that business knowledge doesn't just represent the world outside the company but is a construction of the company and the people working in it The success of a company depends less on how clearly it represents the external environment than on factors such as institutional memory a culture of trust and appropriate organizational mechanisms for learning In short the most successful companies are those which are what the author calls autopoietic knowledge systems In this book he presents a novel scheme for understanding knowledge creation and learning in project based enterprises He shows how autopoietic knowledge systems can be built and the benefits they can bring All scholars and students of knowledge management will benefit from the radical new approach to business organization presented in this book It will also be of great interest to knowledge managers looking to understand how they can drive their businesses forward Interfaces ,2005 Seeks to improve communication between managers and professionals in OR MS Systems Thinking for the Next Millennium System Dynamics Society.
