Rawlinson,Caleb Ward,2015-09-10 As Brillant

Savarin remarked in 1825 in his classic text Physiologie du Goût Tell me what you eat and I will tell you who you are Philosophers and political theorists have only recently begun to pay attention to food as a critical domain of human activity and social justice Too often these discussions treat food as a commodity and eating as a matter of individual choice Policies that address the global obesity crisis by focusing on individual responsibility and medical interventions ignore the dependency of human agency on a culture of possibilities The essays collected here address this lack in philosophy and political theory by appreciating food as an origin of human culture and a network of social relations They show how an approach to the current global obesity epidemic through individual choice deflects the structural change that is necessary to create a culture of healthy eating Analyzing the contemporary food crises of obesity malnutrition environmental degradation and cultural displacement as global issues of public policy and social justice these essays display the essential interconnections among issues of social inequity animal rights environmental ethics and cultural identity They call for new solidarities and new public policies to ensure the sustainable practices necessary to the production and distribution of wholesome and satisfying food Lvi Strauss located the origin of ethics in table manners By learning what and how to eat humans learned respect for others for the earth and for the other forms of life that sustain human existence Lvi Strauss fears that in our time this lesson in humility coursing throughout the mythologies of savage peoples may have been forgotten so that the world is treated as a thing to be appropriated and the extinction of species and cultures as an inevitable result of the ascendancy of global capital This volume makes clear the need to change the way we eat if we are to live on the earth together with what Lvi Strauss calls decency and discretion Food Pedagogies Rick Flowers,Elaine Swan,2016-04-22

In recent years everyone from politicians to celebrity chefs has been proselytizing about how we should grow buy prepare present cook taste eat and dispose of food In light of this contributors to this book argue that food has become the target of intensified pedagogical activity across a range of domains including schools supermarkets families advertising and TV media Illustrated with a range of empirical studies this edited and interdisciplinary volume the first book on food pedagogies develops innovative and theoretical perspectives to problematize the practices of teaching and learning about food While many different pedagogues policy makers churches activists health educators schools tourist agencies chefs think we do not know enough about food and what to do with it the aims effects and politics of these pedagogies has been much less studied Drawing on a range of international studies diverse contexts genres and different methods this book provides new sites of investigation and lines of inquiry As a result of its broad ranging critical evaluation of food as classroom and food as teacher it provides theoretical resources for opening up the concept of pedagogy and assessing the moralities and politics of teaching and learning about food in the classroom and beyond     The Central Asian World Jeanne Féaux de la Croix, Madeleine Reeves, 2023-10-25 This landmark book provides a comprehensive anthropological introduction to contemporary Central Asia. Established and emerging scholars of the region critically interrogate the idea of a Central Asian World at the intersection of post Soviet Persianate East and South Asian worlds. Encompassing chapters on life between Afghanistan and Kazakhstan, Turkmenistan and Xinjiang this volume situates the social political economic ecological and ritual diversity of Central Asia in historical context. The book ethnographically explores key areas such as the growth of Islamic finance the remaking of urban and sacred spaces as well as decolonising and queering approaches to Central Asia. The volume's discussion of More than Human Worlds Everyday Economies Material Culture Migration and Statehood engages core analytical concerns such as globalisation inequality and postcolonialism. Far more than a survey of a world region the volume illuminates how people in Central Asia make a life at the intersection of diverse cross cutting currents and flows of knowledge. In so doing it stakes out the contribution of an anthropology of and from Central Asia to broader debates within contemporary anthropology. This is an essential reference for anthropologists as well as for scholars from other disciplines with a focus on Central Asia     The
