Hats Malcolm Smith,2020-01-01

For such simple garments hats have had a devastating impact on wildlife throughout their long history Made of wild caught mammal furs decorated with feathers or whole stuffed birds historically they have driven many species to near extinction By the turn of the twentieth century egrets shot for their exuberant white neck plumes had been decimated the wild ostrich killed for its feathers until the early 1900s was all but extirpated and vast numbers of birds of paradise from New Guinea and hummingbirds from the Americas were just some of the other birds killed to decorate ladies hats At its peak the hat trade was estimated to be killing 200 million birds a year At the end of the nineteenth century it was a trade valued at 20 million over 25 million a year at the London feather auctions Weight for weight exotic feathers were more valuable than gold Today while no wild birds are captured for feather decoration some wild animals are still trapped and killed for hatmaking A fascinating read Hats will have you questioning the history of your headwear

An Annotated Bibliography of Inuit Art Richard C. Crandall,Susan M.

Crandall,2001 Archaeological digs have turned up sculptures in Inuit lands that are thousands of years old but Inuit art as it is known today only dates back to the beginning of the 1900s Early art was traditionally produced from soft materials such as whalebone and tools and objects were also fashioned out of stone bone and ivory because these materials were readily available The Inuit people are known not just for their sculpture but for their graphic art as well the most prominent forms being lithographs and stonecuts This work affords easy access to information to those interested in any type of Inuit art There are annotated entries on over 3 761 articles books catalogues government documents and other publications
