Single World Divided Nations International Trade And The Oecd Labor Markets:

Single World, Divided Nations? Robert Z. Lawrence, 2010-12-01 The world economy has undergone miraculous changes in the last decade particularly in developing and former communist countries Privatization and trade liberalization have replaced the protectionist and statist policies that were deeply entrenched in these areas just ten years ago Today these dynamic emerging markets offer attractive opportunities According to Robert Lawrence liberal international trade and investment should provide significant opportunities for gains in developing and developed nations alike But will the developed countries be allowed to keep their markets open and absorb exports from developing countries Many in the U S and Europe blame international trade for unemployment and wage inequality But what is the real relationship Lawrence contends that while trade has played some role in reducing the wages of poorly educated workers in the U S and in raising the unemployment of unskilled workers in Europe its impact has been small compared with other causes of these changes Lawrence examines the role of trade in developed and developing countries and its impact on labor markets and wage inequality and discusses what he considers the more important effects of technological and organizational change He begins by focusing on U S wage behavior then moves to wage behavior in the OECD countries Lawrence concludes that the impact of globalization on OECD labor markets has been far less damaging than many have argued and indeed that international trade enhances national welfare He presents considerable evidence that the sources of poor labor market performance are essentially domestic they reflect ongoing technological and organizational shocks that would be present even if the economy was closed This evidence suggests that international differences in wage rates and labor standards are not major factors in OECD labor market behavior He explains that the major challenges to policy are educating the public on the nature of these changes emphasizing the need for worker training and education to take advantage of new technologies and new organizational structures and developing measures to reduce earnings inequality while preserving and increasing wage flexibility Robert Z Lawrence is professor of international trade and investment at the John F Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University His previous books include A Vision for the World Economy Openness Diversity and Cohesion Brookings 1996 the capstone volume to the Integrating National Economies series Copublished with the OECD Development Centre

Global and European Polity? Henri Goverde, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2000 The contents of this text are structured by three sub themes Firstly the internationalization of Europe This field studies threats and chances of re institutionalization of nation state societies and the role of the public sector therein acknowledging the dynamics of the ever changing international political and economic relations The second sub theme is the creative firm in a European context The object of this field is the conditions for innovative organization and management of firms in Europe taking into account the necessary adjustments to emerging

European political and economic transformations The final sub theme is innovative environmental and spacial policy in a European context This section has its object in the far reaching transformations that European societies and particularly the Dutch societies are witnessing These transformations concern the functional relations and spatial and environmental conditions as well as the emerging changes in the way planning and policy institutions deal with their new targets

Multinational Firms and Impacts on Employment, Trade and Technology Robert E. Lipsey, Jean-Louis Mucchielli, 2001-12-13 This collection of essays shows the high degree of complementarity between foreign direct investment and home export challenging the long held fear that firms investing abroad leads to a loss of employment and decline in the home country

The Impact of International Trade on Wages Robert C. Feenstra, 2008-04-15 Since the early 1980s the U S economy has experienced a growing wage differential high skilled workers have claimed an increasing share of available income while low skilled workers have seen an absolute decline in real wages How and why this disparity has arisen is a matter of ongoing debate among policymakers and economists Two competing theories have emerged to explain this phenomenon one focusing on international trade and labor market globalization as the driving force behind the devaluation of low skill jobs and the other focusing on the role of technological change as a catalyst for the escalation of high skill wages This collection brings together innovative new ideas and data sources in order to provide more satisfying alternatives to the trade versus technology debate and to assess directly the specific impact of international trade on U S wages This timely volume offers a thorough appraisal of the wage distribution predicament examining the continued effects of technology and globalization on the labor market

Capital, Labor, and State David Brian Robertson, 2000 Capital Labor and State is a systematic and thorough examination of American labor policy from the Civil War to the New Deal David Brian Robertson skillfully demonstrates that although most industrializing nations began to limit employer freedom and regulate labor conditions in the 1900s the United States continued to allow total employer discretion in decisions concerning hiring firing and workplace conditions Robertson argues that the American constitution made it much more difficult for the American Federation of Labor government and business to cooperate for mutual gain as extensively as their counterparts abroad so that even at the height of New Deal American labor market policy remained a patchwork of limited protections uneven laws and poor enforcement lacking basic national standards even for child labor

Models of Capitalism Evelyne Huber, 2002 Latin American societies have undergone fundamental changes in the past two decades moving from capitalist economies with very wide ranging state intervention to more market driven systems After a prolonged period of recession these changes produced some successes in economic growth in the 1990s but they also exacerbated many problems especially poverty and inequality Models of Capitalism examines why some societies with market economies perform much better than others in combining growth and equity and what the less successful countries can learn from the more successful ones The contributors look at different models of capitalism in Latin America Northeast and Southeast Asia and advanced industrial countries asking which patterns of economic and social policies governments in the more successful societies pursued and which configurations of institutions made pursuing such policies possible The investigation focuses on economic policies designed to stimulate growth on labor market policies designed to promote a qualified labor force and increase productivity and wages and on social policies designed to improve general human capital and to distribute life chances in an equitable way The volume is innovative in explicitly connecting the discussion of growth policies with an analysis of labor market and social policies and in going beyond comparison of Latin American with East Asian approaches to include reference to equity oriented policies in North America and Western Europe as well This approach helps demonstrate how important policy design is in determining distributive outcomes at any given level of development The contributors are Antonio Alas Renato Baumann Ha Joon Chang Carlos H Filgueira Fernando Filgueira Robert Grosse Thomas Janoski John Myles T J Pempel Wilson Peres David Brian Robertson John Sheahan John D Stephens Victor E Tokman and Bridget Welsh Sponsored by the Joint Committee on Latin American Studies of the Social Science Research Council and the American Council of Learned Societies Trade, Technology and Labour Markets Michael Pflüger, 2001 Globalization and Trilateral Labor Markets Niels Thygesen, Yutaka Kōsai, Robert Z.
