addresses an unsettling question asked in recent years about the revolutionary potential of modern biotechnology might the knowledge being gained be used to further rather than prevent the spread of disease In other words might the life sciences become the death sciences To avert this prospect many governments science agencies and others have proposed that researchers should subscribe to new codes of conduct Experimental Secrets recounts five years of international efforts to devise such codes These initiatives have raised a question of profound significance Are there limits to what should be known or communicated in the name of security To convey the experiences of policy making Experimental Secrets offers a marked departure from traditional forms of writing It seeks to convey a sense of what has been at stake with codes through ways of writing that question the conventions of statecraft science and social research Different styles of writing formats of texts and points of views are mixed in an effort to convey the tensions frustrations and promises associated with international diplomatic efforts It will be of interest to those concerned with the relation between science and security as well as the possibilities for social research Cover Making the Impossible Possible Image from the Tissue Culture Art Project The Pig
