From Agriculture Genome to Phenome: Genome-Wide Association, Prediction and Selection Kefei Chen,Li Ma,2023-12-11

The advances in omics technologies have enabled unprecedented progress in agricultural and biological sciences The synergy of high performance computing high throughput omics approaches and high dimensional phenotyping data with high spatial and temporal resolution have demonstrated the capacity to enhance our understanding of biological mechanisms but also to provide powerful insights into dissecting the genetic basis of complex traits with agricultural and economical importance Genome wide association study GWAS has become a useful approach to identify mutations that underlie diseases and complex traits and has provided important insights in exploring genetic profiles However it is less suitable for quantitative traits influenced by a large number of genes with small effects In addition false discoveries are a major concern and can be partially attributed to population structure Genomic selection holds the promise to overcome the limitations by using whole genome information to predict the genetic merits of phenotypes It has been a powerful tool for predicting the breeding values of candidates for selection in breeding populations One of the challenges of genomic prediction of breeding values with large p with small n regressions is to develop robust and efficient approaches that accurately predict phenotypic traits as functions of genotypic and environmental inputs In addition the integration of multi omics data in phenotypic prediction would offer the opportunity to understand the flow of information that underlies the phenotypic traits
