Scholars and Scholarship in Late Babylonian Uruk Christine Proust, John Steele, 2019-01-08 This volume explores how scholars wrote, preserved, circulated, and read knowledge in ancient Mesopotamia. It offers an exercise in micro history that provides a case study for attempting to understand the relationship between scholars and scholarship during this time of great innovation. The papers in this collection focus on tablets written in the city of Uruk in southern Babylonia. These archives come from two different scholarly contexts. One is a private residence inhabited during successive phases by two families of priests who were experts in ritual and medicine. The other is the most important temple in Uruk during the late Achemenid and Hellenistic periods. The contributors undertake detailed studies of this material to explore the scholarly practices of individuals, the connection between different scholarly genres, and the exchange of knowledge between scholars in the city and scholars in other parts of Babylonia and the Greek world. In addition, this collection examines the archives in which the texts were found and the scribes who owned or wrote them. It also considers the interconnections between different genres of knowledge and the range of activities of individual scribes. In doing so, it answers questions of interest not only for the study of Babylonian scholarship but also for the study of ancient Mesopotamian textual culture more generally and for the study of traditions of written knowledge in the ancient world.

Employability via Higher Education:

Sustainability as Scholarship Alice Diver, 2019-09-23 This book discusses the topic of graduate employability from the premise that in this era of massification, economic austerity and political uncertainties, higher education (HE) no longer guarantees a clear work place advantage. Divided into three sections, the book offers theoretical and philosophical discourses on the HE quandary whilst taking into account and critiquing political, temporal and national contexts. It culminates in an investigation into specific discipline areas. It offers insights into the way that institutions, decision makers, academics and professional support staff can work together towards ensuring that our graduates are able to cope with the varied demands and challenges of modern job markets. It harnesses arguments and reflections on the breadth and depth of the functions of HE such as social transformation, promoting principles of social justice and providing opportunities. It grounds these in a triadic model for enhancing student engagement and holistic learning, namely the emotional, cognitive and behavioural aspects. As an anthology, it is forward gazing in terms of the sustainability debate whilst still offering evidence based research, grounded practical suggestions to readers looking for tips and tools of the trade.
