Innovation, Automation and a Sustainable Economy Jon-Arild Johannessen, 2024-04-03 Economic inequality the environmental crisis and the climate crisis are systemically linked Accordingly they should be understood as a single interconnected system and strategies for resolving them should be guided by this understanding This book demonstrates how the Green New Deal and its systemic alternative the Red New Deal could influence the course of these three global crises all within the context of the Fourth Industrial Revolution The author has developed several scenarios that are relevant to the automation that will result from advances in artificial intelligence and intelligent robots The first is one of mass unemployment while the second envisages low rates of unemployment although workers will experience stagnation and then a decline in their wages It is possible to envisage a different set of scenarios however we must replace the capitalist economic model with a different model mutualism a sustainable model that would allow for economic growth while also addressing the three current systemic crises The author argues that if such a model is implemented there will be jobs for everyone and the climate crisis will be tackled because people s welfare will be prioritized over profit We can assert that such a model will foster the development of economic equality The basic premise of this mutual and sustainable economic model is that sustainability is in everyone s interests The book employs not only established and innovative methods such as literature reviews scenario thinking and historical methods to underpin its arguments but also conceptual generalization as an intellectual tool to tackle the general research problem thus it will be an invaluable resource for scholars and students of sustainability and the innovation economy
