Loose Leaf for The Art of Leadership George Manning,Kent Curtis,2018-01-19 The Art of Leadership 6th edition is based on two ideas 1 Leadership will take place to the extent the leader cares about the work to be done Equally important the leader must care about people Neither of these qualities is sufficient without the other and neither can be false People know when the leader cares When the leader is committed to the task and is concerned about people these qualities serve as magnets and motivators to followers and their potential for achievement becomes enormous 2 Leadership is an art that can be developed through mastery of nine key areas of success The successful leader must possess knowledge and skills in the following areas understanding leadership variables the power of vision the importance of ethics the empowerment of people leadership principles understanding people multiplying effectiveness developing others and performance management The difference between most other leadership texts and the Art of Leadership 6th edition can be compared to the difference between a lecture and seminar Although both are good educational vehicles the lecture is better for conveying large amounts of information while the seminar is better for developing skills and attitudes A good lecture is interesting and builds knowledge while a good seminar is stimulating and builds competency Without sacrificing either theoretical foundation or important content the 6th edition of The Art of Leadership emphasizes the interactive seminar approach to learning

J. Zentner, 2014-08-15 Lt Col John J Zentner s The Art of Wing Leadership and Aircrew Morale in Combat addresses the role that the air force wing commander plays in affecting the level of aircrew morale during combat More specifically Colonel Zentner s study seeks to identify and define those unique characteristics associated with leading airmen that sustain aircrew morale in the face of significant losses Colonel Zentner defines aircrew morale as the enthusiasm and persistence with which an aviator flies combat missions He then offers three historical case studies to establish a framework within which aircrew morale can be assessed The first case study is of Maj Adolf Galland and Jagdgeschwader 26 during the Battle of Britain The second case study considers Lt Col Joseph Laughlin and the 362d Fighter Group during the invasion of France in the summer of 1944 The third case study examines Col James R McCarthy and the 43d Strategic Wing during Operation Linebacker II Drawing heavily on the results of questionnaires and personal interviews each case study is focused on the importance that aircrews ascribed to three general areas individual needs group cohesion and unit esprit de corps Colonel Zentner concludes that aircrew control over development of combat tactics was the single most important element affecting morale This finding supports one of the fundamental truths about the employment of airpower centralized control and decentralized execution that has become embedded in the airman's culture. In each of the three cases studied by the author morale generally improved when the wing commander either displayed a personal flair for tactical innovation or allowed his subordinates to become innovative. Conversely morale declined when higher headquarters placed burdensome and unsound restrictions on aircrew tactics. The Art of Leadership in War John Horsfield, 1980-12-19 Not just for idiots The Complete Idiot's Guide to Learning Piano is perfect for all beginners with no prior training or as a refresher for those who played before.
