AN EDITORIAL.

Choices difficult

Colony voters will face many difficult decisions when they choose a mayor and the first five members of their City Council on April 2.

Choices will often be hard because a number of well-qualified candidates have filed and more undoubtedly will do so.

Among all other residents are interested and concerned over what first steps the city will take when its first substantive steps are taken. Most homeowners agree that it's an unusual opportunity to start from scratch and chart the destiny of a birth.

All candidates have expressed a desire to keep city expenses down and live within the city's means without increasing expenses to voters.

The first mayor and aldermen will face the next few years when residents ask for more city services.

Where public utilities ask for rate increases, interested citizens in Texas are sure on the way for electricity because of cold weather in the North which has driven natural gas prices in Texas where the interstate price is not regulated.

Important matters are faced and the Courier wishes to repeat the candidates' views accurately and fairly.

Where a candidate files for election we will report his views on Colony issues and tell him in his background as of release to the Colony. Name, views of candidates toward at present meetings will be reported.

Letters to the editor up to 500 words will be welcomed once a month by candidates or their backers. They will be subject to editing if necessary in short.

The Courier invites to five editorial meetings and editorial photos of all candidates about two weeks before the April 2 election.

Whatever the voters choose, the best of luck and the ultimate in wisdom in formulating a new city.

Candidates seek the advice of homeowners through the

More details on the candidates will be given in next week's edition of the Courier.

Voters will choose three members for the five-member board to serve unexpired terms in April 2 election.

Candidates for candidates to file at the MUD office are to do so before the election.

From "Cochran," MUD manager, said the names of MUD Board candidates would appear on the voter ballot at business meeting next edition.

Gaulden, Coats file Eight seek seats on city council

Four more candidates have filed for seats on the Colony's first City Council. They are Mark Coats and Jim Coats.

There are now eight candidates vying for City Council seats and four seeking the office of the mayor's job.

Candidate of 50000 Pheasant Lane will be business experience, would be of value to the new city. He is a sales representative for Comco Survival Company and was with the City of Dallas Services Department three years and with Dallas Power & Light for seven years.

Gaulden also cites his contacts with municipal service institutions which would aid a new city.
